ATLANTA BANKERS ENDORSE THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

UNANIMOUSLY FAVOR SPIRIT AND PURPOSE OF THE PRESIDENT

Resolutions Adopted at Called Meeting, Declaring a Currency Bill Should Be Passed at This Session

SEVEN BIG BANKS WERE REPRESENTED AT MEETING

Resolution Introduced by Joseph A. McCord, Taken Up Paragraph by Paragraph and Unanimously Adopted

Officers of the seven banks composing the Atlanta Clearing House association met in the directors' room of the Lowry National bank at 12:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and adopted resolutions approving the purpose of President Wilson's message on currency reform. They urged that remedial currency legislation be enacted during the present session of congress.

The resolutions, which prove a hearty indorsement of President Wilson's insistent demand for a revision of the national monetary system, were introduced by Joseph A. McCord, vice president of the Third National bank, and were approved unanimously. The meeting of the clearing house officials was presided over by Colonel Robert J. Lowry, president of the Lowry National bank, and head of the clearing house association.

The resolutions were signed by the following banks and the officers representing them at the clearing house meeting:

Lowry National bank, by Robert J. Lowry, president.

Fourth National bank, by James W. English, Sr., president.

American National bank, by Robert E. Maddox, vice president.

Third National bank, Joseph A. McCord, vice president.

Central Bank and Trust corporation, by A. P. Coles, vice president.

Fulton National Bank, by W. J. Blalock, president.

STRONG COMMENDATION.

The bankers were strong in their commendation of President Wilson for his untiring effort in behalf of a speedy and effective currency reform to be pushed through at the present session of congress.

His message, the resolution declared, had been read by Atlanta and southern bankers with interest and approval. The local bankers concurred with the president that some sort of revision of the currency system is essential for the relief of the banking and commercial interests of the country.

SEE SPEEDY REJUVENATION.

Their belief in aspeedy rejuvenation of the currency system of Atlanta bankers voiced in aparagraph asserting that the agricultural, manufacturing and commercial interests of Atlanta and the whole southeast would be aided by the passage of a currency bill at this session of congress.

Complete confidence was expressed in the ability of the president and congress to frame a bill in this direction, which will benefit the whole nation and attend the end of all proposed currency reform, that of giving the country a monetary system that will be safe and elastic at the same time.

The resolutions were passed without a dissenting vote, and after only a brief discussion. The seven prominent bankers who took part in the meeting seemed agreed at once that President Wilson and congress are working in the right direction in urging instant reform.

The meeting was held on the second floor of the Equitable building, and adjourned at about 10 o'clock.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY THE ATLANTA CLEARIMG HOUSE BANKS

At a meeting of the Atlanta Clearing House association, held in their offices on Tuesday morning, the following resolutions were adopted:

"Whereas, we have read with interest and approval the President's message to Congress, asking for the passage of some kind of remedial currency legislation for the relief of the banking and commercial interest of the country:

"Therefore, be it resolved first that we indorse heartily the spirit and purpose of said message;

Resolved further that it is the belief of the banks composing the Atlanta Clearing House association, representing the agricultural, manufacturing and commercial interests of Atlanta, and the prosperous southeast, that a satisfactory bill for the reform of banking and currency laws should be passed at this session of congress.

Resolved further, that we believe that the combined wisdom of the president, the house and the senate, after learing from the banking, commercial, agricultural and manufacturing interests of the country, can and will evolve a currency bill that will be satisfactory to the banks and beneficial to the nation.

CURRENCR MESSAGE WHIPS ENEMIES OF BILL INTO ALLIES

Address of President Wilson Made Profound Impression, and Passage of Bill Is Now Almost Certain

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 24.—The effect of President Wilson's address to congress on the need for currency legislation at this session was apparent today in the talk to be heard on Capitol Hill, and the comment of the big eastern newspapers. It is conceded generally that the president will succeed in forcing a currency bill through congress at this session, and it is admitted generally that his appeal yesterday had a tremendous effect.

Senators Hoke Smith ,of Georgia, and Stone, of Missouri, were companions in the march of the senate to the house wing of the capitol, to hear the address. Senator Stone remarked on the trip through the corridors that he "had no objection to offer against the president delivering a message on currency" if he wanted to do it.

"But," said Senator Stone, "it will avail nothing. Congress will be ready to adjourn when it gets the tariff out of the way."

The same senators were companions on the return to the senate chamber after hearing the president's address.

"Smith," said Senator Stone, "that man Wilson is a remarkable character. His address was one of the finest and most impressive things I ever heard. I believe I am willing to stay in Washington a while longer, despite the discomforts of the weather, and help him pass a currency bill."

Senator Stone is not an emotional

BURWELL UNOPPOSED IN HIS RACE FOR SPEAKER OF HOUSE

Reps. Hardeman and Sheppard Both Retire, Leaving Gentleman From Hancock the Only Candidate

Representative W. H. Burwell, of Hancock county, is now unopposed in his race for speaker of the house of representatives and when that body meets Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock to organize he will be elected by acclamation.

Tuesday morning Representative J. E. Sheppard, of Sumter county, retired from the race and Tuesday afternoon Representative R. N. Hardeman, of Jefferson, announced his withdrawal. For several months Mr. Burwell has been conceded to have the best chances of election and during the past two days Messrs. Hardeman and Sheppard have thoroughly canvassed the situation with the result that they have satisfied themselves that they cannot win out against Mr. Burwell.

Mr. Sheppard released his supporters from further obligation about 10 o'clock Tuesday morning. He gave out no formal statement concerning his action, simply explaining that he had withdrawn from the speakership race without prejudice or favor to either of the other candidates.

Mr. Hardeman held a conference of his friends about noon and announced his intention to withdraw from the race. Following this conference he issued a written statement in which he declared that in leaving the race he did so without feeling or bitterness toward anyone. This statement concluded with the following paragraph:

"While I have had, and now have

ROUGH ON THE "CALAMITY" BOYS

INSPECTOR DIGS UP PERSONAL RECORD OF SPEER IN SAVANNAH

Affairs of Clerk's Office Form Only Small Part of Probe Made by Inspector Lewis on Trip

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 24.—That the visit of Inspector Lewis to Savannah is for a far deeper and more important purpose than merely to check up the affairs of the clerk of the United States court at this point, is becoming more evident ever yday. Inspector Lewis has about concluded his work upon the affairs of the clerk's office and his inquiriey now have gone far away from that field. It has become known that he is looking into the affairs of Judge Emory Speer personally. It is reported from sources that are known to be accurate that the inspector has called upon members of the Savannah bar and former officers of Judge Speer's court for the purpose of securing affidavits of an important character.

Just what these affidavits are and just what the affiants have testified to is not known, but the fact that evidence of this character is being secured has caused a very decided local sensation in Savannah. The purpose of the inquiry is not known in Savannah, but that it has a very deep significance is looked upon as a certainty. Judge Speer's friends in Savannah are apparently considerably concerned over the trend of affairs and those who have not been counted in that category for some years past are exceedingly active.

Whether the department of justice is behind any action that has been taken is not known here. There are unconfirmed rumors that the next development in the case is to come from the national capital and that congress may be interested in the outcome.

SERVIA WILL ACCEPT RUSSIAN ARBITRATION

Dispute Between Bulgaria and Former Ally May End Soon

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, June 24.—It is reported from Sofia that Servia has yielded to the exortions of Russia and the powers to accept Russian arbitration on the basis of the ante-bellum treaty. This has not yet been confirmed from Belgrade, where the cabinet crisis, which arose through the ministers of war and justice refusing to consent to such a course, still continues. It is rumored that a new cabinet will be formed by M. Proctice, minister of the interior in the previous cabinet, who is strongly anti-Bulgarian.

Greece is taking a determined stand by the side of Servia. In reply to Russia's request that she should intervene at Belgrade in favor of peace, Greece points out that she is not a party to the Serbo-Bulgarian treaty which was arranged unknown to her and without regard to her interests.

The Greek foreign minister has issued a long statement explaining the attitude of his government. He compained of Bulgaria's provocative attitude throughout and declares the only possible solution is the reference of all disputed questions to arbitration. He strongly opposes the Bulgarian demand to settle, by partition of the territories, with each of the allies separately.

SAYS MAYOR IS STALLING ON CREMATORY CONTRACT

Attorney Samuel N. Evins Says Mr. Woodward Refuses to Get Down to Business

That Mayor Woodward, though claiming he is ready to sign a crematory contract and pay the Destructor company when the crematory shall have been completed and accepted, is in reality opposed to the completion of the plant, opposed to the payment of any money to the company and is now "stalling" the company and the general council in their efforts to adjust the matter in a businesslike way, is charged by Samuel N. Evins, of Evins & Spence, the attorneys for the company.

"We submitted to council a proposal, and council accepted it, which is one way of making a contract," he said to a Journal representative Tuesday. "The mayor objected to that way of making a contract, and demanded that council pass up a regular form of contract to be entered by him. We submitted to the mayor the basis of a contract, in order to save time by passing a contract which he would approve, and he found objections to it.

"We retired and drew another tentative contract satisfying every one of his objections. Now what does he do? He hasn't even read the contract, as clearly shown by his newspaper intereviews to the effect that the contract must contain no reference to the old, original contract. That is exactly what we did—cut out all reference to the old contract.

CONTRACT UNREAD.

"The contract now is lying on his desk, unread. He claims that he has no desire to stop work on the plant. C. P. Goree, the attorney who enjoined the old contractor and who is now undertaking to stop work on the plant, confers with him nearly every day. He was in conference with the mayor Tuesday morning.

"No, the truth is that the mayor doesn't want the crematory finished, and there is a reason why he doesn't, and if it is necessary to raise the issue against him we are going to tell what this reason is. We have tried, and council has tried, to negotiate with the mayor and close up this matter in a businesslike way. But you simply can't do business with him. He makes demands, we concede to them, and then he comes back and makes more. He is heckling us and stalling us, and instead of having withdrawn his opposition to the crematory, as he claims in the newspapers, in reality he is holding us up at every turn of the road."

Attorney Goree, as Mr. Evins says, was in conference with Mayor Woodward in the mayor's office Tuesday morning. Upon leaving the mayor's office he went to the city clerk's office and obtained a copy of the resolution passed by council authorizing the Destructor company to continue work on the plant. When asked by The Journal if he intends to continue the litigation, and if his aim is to stop work on the plant, he angrily informed the reporter that he would try his case in the courts and not in the newspapers.

WHAT MAYOR SAYS.

Immediately after Mr. Goree left the mayor's office the mayor was interviewed on the crematory subject.

He claimed that he did not know what Mr. Goree is planning in the crematory matter.

"He and I were talking about another matter," he said. "I don't know what Mr. Goree is trying to do. So far as I'm concerned, I will sign a contract if they draw one right. And so far as the company continuing work on the plant is concerned, my opinion is that it cannot go on with the work without being in contempt of the supreme court. Oh, yes, I know they say they are going on under authority of a special resolu-

U. S. WITHDRAWS ALL AID TO MILITIA IN GOV. BLEASE'S STATE

War Department Takes Umbrage at South Carolina Governor's Letters and Severs Further Relation

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

COLUMBIA, S. C., June 24.—The United States government, taking umbrage at the letters of Governor Blease, withdrew all federal aid to South Carolina's militia, thereby causing abandonment of plans to encamp the three militia regiments this summer.

Notification of the withdrawal of aid came to Adjutant General Moore in a telegram from General Mills and through a letter from Secretary of War Garrison to Governor Blease.

"After careful consideration of your communication I am forced to the conclusion that you leave the war department no other course to pursue than to withdraw all federal assistance to the organized militia of South Carolina, and it is with great regret that I have to inform you that such action will be taken immediately," said Secretary Garrison in a letter to Governor Blease today.

"PLEASANT," SAYS BLEASE.

"This announcement is very pleasant to me. I fought this Dick law when I was in the senate, and I have seen the wisdom of my opposition since, and nothing gives me more pleasure than to see South Carolina relieved from its iniquitous provisions. Thanking you on behalf of myself," immediately replied the governor.

Brigadier General Mills in a telegram to Adjutant General Moore this morning said:

"In accordance with the action of the war department this date, taken in consequence of attitude of governor of your state as expressed in his letters, no further federal assistance either in person or equipment will be afforded the organized militia of your state, nor will further expenditure of federal funds in hands of disbursing officers be authorized by the secretary of war, except to cover such obligations as may have already been incurred and approved by the secretary of war."

GOVERNOR BLEASES REPLY.

Governor Blease in a hot reply to the action of the war department said:

"This is what I have been wanting for some time. I fought the Dick law in the senate. I believed the state was unwise in adopting it, and I believe the wisdom of my fight against it has been shown. The law is an infernal mess, and I have been making a continuous fight since its adoption here to get it off my state. I believe this will certainly open the eyes of the legislature, and that at their next session they will repeal the Dick law. When that shall have been done I will have won a struggle I have been making for several years and truly I shall sing 'Hallelujah, praise the Lord.' South Carolina is once again free from the domination of Yankee uniforms and once again in the control of her own state militia.

REFERS TO "YANKEES."

"As to the matter of encampments, I don't know whether this will affect them or not, but if it does I am satisfied the young militiamen of South Carolina would rather not have an encampment than be bossed by Yankees in their own state organization."

South Carolina gets annually about $75,000 from the federal government for her militia and it was this fund which was counted on to defray the expense of the encampments. No state

JULY 28 IS DATE AGREED UPON FOR TRIAL OF FRANK

Judge Names Date After Statement From Reuben R. Arnold, in Which He Said Trial Would Last Two Weeks

DEFENSE TAKES STEPS TO GET STATE'S EVIDENCE

Subpenas Duces Tecum Issued, Demanding Production of Affidavits and Popers in Possession of Solicitor

Leo M. Frank, accused of the slaying of Mary Phagan, will not be tried before superior court Judge L. S. Roan next Monday. The judge in a conference with attorneys at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon formally set the trial for Monday, July 28, and no attempt to reopen the question of arraignment will be made. Both the prosecution and the defense agreed to this date.

Any attempt made to put Frank on trial on next Monday was silenced when Reuben R. Arnold, speaking for the defense, said flatly that the trial would take at least two weeks. The assurance that the trial would last some time and the fact that it likely would be held held in the stuffy little court room in the Thrower building, if scheduled Monday, practically caused the postponement.

Solicitor Dorsey, for the state, and Luther Z. Rosser and Reuben R. Arnold, for the prosecution, were summoned to the court house by Judge Roan at 2 o'clock and a discussion of the matter was opened.

SOLICITOR ANNOUNCED READY.

Solicitor Dorsey announced that he was ready and made the declaration that his witnesses would not take more than two days at the outside. He said if the defense had any he didn't think they would take any longer.

This remark brought a grunt from Luther Z. Rosser and the Arnold statement that the trial would take two weeks.

"We have the witnesses," both of the lawyers for the defense asserted.

Both Attorneys Rosser and Arnold told the court that in the event of a postponement of the case for Monday that they desired it to go over until after the week of July 14, when they would be engaged in the trial of Mattie Flanders in Swainsboro. Mr. Rosser represents the defense of Mrs. Flanders and Mr. Arnold the prosecution.

This came when Solicitor Dorsey suggested that the case be tried on July 7.

Judge Roan, in fixing July 28 as a date suitable to all concerned, said that there would be no break in the week, as there would with July 4, that a good court room for the trial could be obtained after July 12; that the jail could be cleared of routine cases by that time and previously made engagement would not be interposed.

All lawyers concerned were in court and the judge asserted that lack of preparation could not be offered as an excuse when the case was called on July 28.

The attorneys for Leo M. Frank Tuesday afternoon secured subpoenas duces tecum to be served on Chief James L. Beavers, Chief N. A. Lanford, Solicitor Hugh M. Dorsey, Assistant Solicitor E. A. Stevens, Hary Scott, of the Pinkertons; City Detectives John Black, Pat Campbell and J. N. Starnes, and Secretary of Chief Lanford, G. C. Febuary, calling upon them to produce in court Monday June 30, or any other day that the Frank case might be on trial, all affidavits or statements secured from Jim Conley, the negro sweeper; Monteen Stover and Grace Hix.

Subpoenas declare that the papers are wanted as evidence by the defense in the case of Leo M. Frank.

ALL PAPERS DEMANDED.

The subpoenas duces tecum order those upon whom they are served to produce a certain affidavit or statement sworn to by James Conley in the presence of Detective John Black and Harry Scott, on May 18; also affidavits or statements made by Conley on May 24; also a certain written affida-

EFFORT IS MADE TO ELIMINATE FREE SUGAR

Anti-Free Sugar Democrats Get Together to Support Shafroth's Amendment

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Anti-free sugar Democrats got together in the senate caucus today and agreed to support an amendment by Senator Shafroth to eliminate the provision for free sugar in 1916 and substitute a duty of approximately 1-2 cent a pound after that time on refined sugar.

The Shafroth amendment accepts the duties proposed in the Underwood bill upon sugars for the next three years, including a rate on refined sugar until 1916, of approximately 1 cent a pound. Louisiana senators and those from beet sugar states are making no fight to change their rates, but are urging their colleagues to abandon free sugar for a further 60 per cent reduction in 1916. If the amendment is vote down the anti-free sugar senators will have other alternatives to propose.

JAP CONSUL DISCOUNTS ALARMIST WAR TALK

K. Ijima, Consul General to New York, Talks of Relations Between Japs and U. S.

(By Associated Press.)

SAN FRANCISCO, June 24.—K. Ijima, newly appointed Japanese consul general at New York, arrived here yesterday and immediately began discounting alarmist discussion of relations between his country and the United States.

"All this war talk over the anti-alien land bill is but the work of agitators," he said. "It does not express the feeling. Japan believes that the United States will treat her fairly, and is waiting with patience for a just and quiet settlement of the difficulty."

vit, or statement made and signed by Conley on May 28 in the presence of Chief Lanford and Detectives Black and Scott; also an affidavit made by Conley on May 28 in the presence of Chief Lanford and Detectives Campbell and Scott; also "all other statements or affidavits made by James Conley in your power, custody or control, in reference to the murder of Mary Phagan."

The subpoenas further demand the production of all statements or affidavits made by Newt Lee in reference to the case; also all affidavits or statements made by Monteen Stover; also all statements made by W. M. Mathews; and finally all statements or affidavits made by Grace Hix.

The subpoenas provide that the papers named shall be produced in court on Monday, June 30, or on any other day that the case of the State vs. Leo M. Frank might be on trial.

It is evident by this move on the part of the defense that Mr. Frank's attorneys propose to lay great stress upon the conflicting statements and affidavits made by the negro Conley as the real murderer of Mary Phagan and his numerous statements in reference to the case will doubtless be used to show the unreliability of his evidence against Frank.

POINT TO BE CONTESTED.

While Solicitor Dorsey absolutely declined to discuss the demands of the defense for the production of the papers and affidavits secured by the state in its investigation of the Phagan tragedy, it is evident that the papers will not be turned over to the defense without a bitter fight. The papers unquestionably will be brought to court by those who now have them in custody, but before the defense is permitted access to them it is believed that the state will contest the point before the judge. Just how this will be done is not known.

Frank H. Hooper, the attorney who will be associated with the solicitor in the porsecution, was in conference with Solicitor Dorsey and Detectives Starnes, Campbell and Harry Scott for several hours Tuesday morning. The nature of this conference was not known but it is believed that they were going over the evidence in the Phagan case, getting ready for the trial.

WHAT IS THIS EVIDENCE?

There is considerable speculation as to the nature of the statement or affidavit made by W. M. Mathews, which is among the papers demanded by the defense. Both Chief Beavers and Chief Lanford declare that they never heard of Mathews in connection with the Phagan case before. It seems probable, therefore, that Mathews' statement is part of the evidence secured by Solicitor Dorsey. The only W. M. Mathews whose name is in the city directory is a street car motorman living at 459 Lee street.

CONFER WITH RELATIVES.

Detectives working on the Phagan case Monday afternoon held a conference at Chief Lanford's office with J. W. Coleman, step-father of the slain girl, and W. J. Phagan, the aged grandfather, of Marietta.

The two men visited police headquarters at the request of the detectives and discussed every feature of the case to be brought out at the trial of Leo M. Frank.

It is said the two men went to headquarters for conference following the last attempt on the part of Solicitor Dorsey to gain new information from Jim Conley, the negro witness. Conley, it is said, was quizzed again Monday, but the examination, so officials assert, developed nothing new.

GEORGIA AND HER PCLITICS

Former Speaker Holder "Mixing It" with "the Boys."

John N. Holder, of Jefferson, Jackson county, former speaker of the house of representatives and candidate last year for congress from the Ninth district, is in Atlanta greeting old members of the legislature and meeting the new ones.

Mr. Holder is opposing the proposition to create the new county of Barrow and is incidentally letting the representatives from the counties in the Ninth congressional district know that he will run for congress again in the primary of 1914.

The Barrow county contest figured largely in last year's congressional race in the Ninth. It being claimed that Mr Holder's opposition to the movement proved a large factor in his defeat.

William J. Harris Will Soon Assume New Duties in Washington.

On Saturday afternoon, William J. Harris, former senator from the Thirty-eighth district, and at present chairman of the state Democratic executive committee, will leave for Washington, where he will soon enter upon his duties as director of the federal census.

Mr. Harris has remained in Atlanta for the meeting of the new legislature and to witness the inauguration of Governor John M. Slaton.

Key and Edmondson Are "Junior" Members of the General Assembly.

That the people of Georgia do not hold to the theory that wisdom and ability are confined to and monopolized by the older citizens is evidenced by the fact that in this year's general assembly there is a large proportion of young men.

Senator Fred Key, of the Sixteenth district, is said to be the youngest member of the senate. He is twenty-seven years old. Grover C. Edmondson, representative from Brooks, is known as the "baby" member of the house, he having attained his majority a few weeks before the election last fall.

Both Senator Key and Representative Edmondson are well known lawyers and are reputed to be men of exceptional ability. The former resides in the city of Dublin and the latter at Quitman.

"Public Defenders" Provided For in Proposed Statute.

If a bill which has been prepared by Judge W. H. Hammond, of Atlanta, and which will be introduced in the legislature by Representative R. B. Blackburn, of Fulton, becomes a law five large city counties in Georgia will be authorized and required to employ an experienced attorney whose duties will be to defend indigent persons who are charged with crimes.

These officials are to be known as "public defenders," and their compensation is to be fixed by the county commissioners and paid by the county. They will receive their appointments at the hands of the superior court judges and will serve terms of four years, beginning January 1, 1914, but will take office as soon as they can be appointed after the law is enacted.

The bill will apply to only those counties having cities of 20,000 or more population—Fulton, Chatham, Richmond, Bibb, Muscogee. According to the terms of the proposed bill it will be the duty of a public defender "to defend all persons charged with crimes or misdemeanors in the superior courts of said counties or other criminal courts except the mayor's or recorder's courts, where such persons are unable to employ counsel to defend them. If the opinion of said public defender, concurred in by the judge of the court, said person is guilty as charged in the indictment or accusation, then he shall so advse the court, and he shall not then be required to do more than to use his influence to prevent the imposition of an excessive penalty."

Chatham County Ratifying Election of Shuptrine.

Chatham county is holding a very quiet election Tuesday. Herman C. Shuptrine, a well known druggist and business man, is being elected a member of the Georgia legislature to succeed Hon. P. A. Stovall, resigned.

The real interest in this contest hinged about the race for the primary nomination, which was decided a week ago when Mr. Shuptrine defeated J. J. Bouhan.

Lig Interstate Highway is Plan of Representative Slater.

William F. Slater, representative from Bryan county in the state legislature, has a very interesting bill which he will introduce early in the session. Mr. Slater wants to use 100 of the felony convicts of the state in building a public highway. He wishes it to begin at King's Ferry bridge, on the Ogeechee river, in Bryan county, and extend thence through the counties of Bryan, Liberty, McIntosh, Glynn or Wayne and Camden counties, to some point on the line between the state of Florida and the state of Georgia, there to join a projected road through the state of Florida.

Mr. Bryan wants the counties interested to furnish the equipment and material necessary for the construction of the highway, and also the drainage culverts and bridges, while the state furnishes the labor. He wishes the counties interested to send delegates to a convention to agree upon the route after the state has agreed to the use of the convicts. Mr. Slater says this road is very badly needed and that the state can build it in this way without any great expense. The prison commission

WILL A BLOW ON HEAD CURE TOBACCO HABIT?

Beaten and Robbed by Thugs, Christian Leaves Hospital, Believing Himself Cured

W. W. Christian, a cabinet maker of 16 Larkin street, says he believes himself relieved of the cigarette habit by a blow ove rthe head. It was delivered Monday evening by a thug, who relieved him of $14 and a pocket knife.

Christian was brought to the hospital from the corner of Stonewall and Tatnall streets, early in the evening. When he left the institution about midnight he left a package of cigarettes with the night clerk, declaring that he had retained no taste for the weed, although he was an inveterate smoker a few hours before.

It is said that Christian was approached by two white men, one of whom asked for a match. While he was reaching for it, the other man struck him upon the head, presumably with a sandbag, and he next regained consciousness on the operating table at the hospital. He found $14 and a pocket knife missing from his pockets.

C. W. MOTES INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Hundreds of shoppers saw two automobile accidents near the center of the city between 5 and 6 o'clock Monday afternoon.

On Whitehall street near the corner of Alabama, C. W. Motes, a pioneer Atlanta photographer, was knocked to the pavement by an automobile driven by a colored chauffeur, who gave his name as 'Major" Stevens.

While a deep gash was cut over his *head and suffered many bruises his in-*juries are not expected to prove serious. Mr. Motes, who is seventy-three years of age, was picked up by Patrolman Davis, who ordered the chauffeur to drive him to the home of a relative on Spring street. The negro was then taken in custody, charged with reckless driving.

The second accident occurred at the corner of Marietta and Forsyth street, when Johnny Nickers, a six-year-old newsboy, of 121 West Pine street, was run down by an auto truck.

The boy was rushed to the Grady hospital, suffering from several cuts and bruises. He was released from the institution, however, early in the evening.

The truck was operated by the post-office department and was driven by E. V. D. Manning, a postal clerk living at 24 Spencer street. A case was docketed against him and he was required to give a $200 bond for his appearance in the recorder's court.

AMERICUS CHIEF MAY RECOVER FROM WOUNDS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

AMERICUS, Ga., June 24.—The condition of William C. Barrow, the aged chief of police who was shot Saturday night by William Redding, a negro, who was subsequently lynched, is slightly improved today and physicians entertain hopes of his recovery.

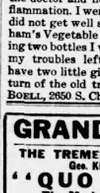
The reports that young women took part in the lynching was entirely erroneous.

An investigation of the affair is under way.

DOCTORS DID NOT HELP HER

But Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Mrs. LeClear's Health—Her Own Statement.

Detroit, Mich.—"I am glad to discover a remedy that relieves me from my suffering and pains. For two years I suffered bearing down pains and got all run down. I was under a nervous strain and could not sleep at night. I went to doctors here in the city but they did not do me any good.



"Seeing Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised, I tried it. My health improved wonderfully and I am now quite well again. No woman suffering from female ills will regret it if she takes this medicine."—Mrs. JAMES G. LECLEAR, 336 Hunt St., Detroit, Mich.

Another Case.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is all you claim it to be. About two or three days before my periods I would get bad backaches, then pains in right and left sides, and my head would ache. I called the doctor and he said I had organic inflammation. I went to him for a while but did not get well so I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After taking two bottles I was relieved and finally my troubles left me. I married and have two little girls. I have had no return of the old troubles."—Mrs. CHAS. BOELL, 2650 S. Chadwick St., Phila., Pa.

Booklovers, Important Notice!

Submit your sets of Answers right. If you use an Answer Book, or if you use only pictures and coupons. Observe the following Directions.

Those Who Have Answer Books

It is not necessary to retain number at top of picture, but it is all right to do so.

Write down your titles in pen, pencil or in any other way, opposite the pictures.

Be sure your name and address is written on each page, so that if a page should fall out while checking, it could be identified and replaced.

Wrap up the Answer Book carefully and paste on the outside of the package the address blank which will be printed in The Journal on Sunday, July 13th, and thereafter until Saturday, July 19th.

Those Who Do Not Use Answer Book

Cut the pictures out along the dotted lines.

You must use a separate picture and coupon for each answer you submit. Keep the like pictures together. If you have made three answers to picture No. 1, start your set with the three copies of picture No. 1. If you have made four answers to picture No. 2, have these four copies of picture No. 2 come next. And so on for all the pictures.

Fasten your set together at the top in some way—any way you please. Run a string through the tops of the pictures, paste the tops of the pictures together, or fasten them in any other way you choose.

Lay your set out flat and wrap it flat. Do not fold or roll it. Better put a piece of cardboard along one side of the set to hold it flat.

Wrap the set carefully and paste on the outside of the package the address blank that will be printed in The Journal Sunday, July 13th, and thereafter until Saturday, July 19th.

You can write your answers to the pictures in pen, pencil, by typewriter, or in any other way you please.

It is not Too Late to Enter. More than three weeks will elapse before any sets can be filed. After Saturday July 12th no further supplies will be sold. No Sets of Answers can be Filed Before Monday July 14th. You have until midnight Saturday, July 19th, to bring or send your set of Answers to The Atlanta Journal Booklovers' Campaign Department, No. 1 North Forsyth street, Atlanta, Ga. A special address blank, to be pasted on the outside of your set, will be published each day from Sunday July 13 to Saturday July 19th.

Sets sent in before time mentioned will either be returned to sender or not counted in the Campaign.

Be sure that sufficient amount of postage is paid on package at the first-class postage rate.

FLING AT BISHOPS BY VANDY BOARD SECRETARY

Bishops Candler and Hoss Would Sacrifice University to Attain Ends, He Says

Whiteford R. Cole, of Nashville, secretary of the board of trust of Vanderbilt university, has written a reply to the attacks by Bishop E. E. Hoss and Bishop Warren A. Candler on Andrew Carnegie's offer of $1,000,000 to the medical department of the university, which reply is published in the Nashville Banner.

Mr. Cole goes into the subject in detail. He says the chief burdens of the complaints of both bishops is that under the terms of Mr. Carnegie's offer the university is to "give away the medical department to a new governing board without limitation or restriction."

GOVERNING BOARD'S RULES.

To this Mr. Cole replies by citing the rules for the governing board as formulated by the board of trust in accepting the offer. These rules provide for a governing board of seven, to be elected by the board of trust and subject to removal for cause by the board of trust. They provide that the records of the governing board shall be open to the board of trust, to the executive committee of the board of trust, and to the president of the board of trust. They provide that the acts of the governing board shall be subject to ratification or rejection by the board of trust. The governing board is not to be an incorporated body. Thus, Mr. Cole contends, the board of trust practically retains the absolute control of the medical department. The governing board is little more than a committee of the board of trust.

That the members of the governing board shall be elected without regard to denominational considerations, and solely for their fitness for the position, says Mr. Cole, is not the character of administration that meets with Bishop Hoss' views.

THE SECOND OBJECTION.

The second main objection of Bishops Hoss and Candler, Mr. Cole continues, is that Mr. Carnegie "makes no promise of his proposed $500,000 endowment unless the board of trust win the lawsuit instituted by the Methodist Episcopal church, south, to gain control of the university."

This objection, Mr. Cole contends, is premature. The plain inference of Mr. Carnegie's letter, he says, is that his gift to the university will continue so long as the medical department is conducted by a governing board as above stated. Mr. Cole declares that if the board of trust should win the litigation, then there is no ground for the objections of the bishops. If the church should win, then Bishop Hoss and his following can simply cancel the contract with Mr. Carnegie.

Bishops Hoss and Candler undertake to make it appear, Mr. Cole goes on, that terms of Mr. Carnegie's offer are such as to influence the pending litigation in favor of the board of trust. To this Mr. Cole replies that the board of trust, in accepting the offer, announced only the acceptance, and did not make public the terms of the offer, preferring to withhold these until the litigation should be concluded, and therefore Bishops Hoss and Candler must assume responsibility for injecting the litigation into the controversy.

Summing up, Mr. Cole says the university in accepting Mr. Carnegie's offer would suffer no property rights to be impaired in the slightest, and that the one change in the status of the university's affairs will be that it will be able to carry out plans far beyond anything which had been hoped for.

HE CRITICISES BISHOPS.

As to Bishops Hoss and Candler, Mr. Cole says they are bent upon the triumph of an idea—namely, the control of the university by the church—and that in order to attain this end they are even willing to deprive the university of money necessary to the fulfilment of its destiny.

In the present controversy, as in the past, Mr. Cole says the bishops offer no alternative. Instead of a policy of co-operation and construction, their policy is critical and obstructive, he declares.

But in this policy they are consistent he says, with the church's conduct toward the university, as the church has never contributed to the support of any except the theological department of the university, and has left the other departments to shift for themselves.

Tech Diamond Star Weds Young Society Miss of Seventeen

John Ware Holliday, known to college baseball fame as "Goat" Holliday, star firstsacker of the Tech team for two seasons past, and Miss Lydia McBride, a charming member of Atlanta's society set, were married Monday night at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. George Breitenbucher, 124 Sunset avenue.

The wedding was the culmination of a romance of several years' standing. The bride is but seventeen years old, the groom twenty. They have known each other for a long time, and it was generally understood among their friends that they were engaged to be married.

The wedding Monday night, was, however, a surprise to many. Only the immediate members of the young people's families, a few "frat" brothers of Mr. Holliday, and six girl friends of the bride were present. Dr. Hugh K. Walker officiated.

In the midst of the reception gayeties which followed the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Holliday slipped out by the back way to the Terminal station, where they caught a train for Waycross, the present home of the groom, thus escaping the showers of rice and old shoes which their well-wishers had prepared for them.

HEAVY SHIPMENT OF MELONS SENT NORTH

Luscious Georgia Fruit Is Shipped From Moultrie by the Carloads

MOULTRIE, Ga., June 24.—The movement of watermelons and canteloupes is on in earnest this week and Moultrie is headquarters for a good sized colony of melon and canteloupe buyers and assistant freight agents and commercial agents of railroads.

The weather is ideal, both for picking, shipping and marketing. Melons sell well in hot weather, and they are sweetest and stand the long road trips the best when the weather is a bit dry.

Watermelons sold on the track today at $150, $175 and even more per car. The size is medium, but the flavor is extra good. The demand is good.

Many growers are selling their entire crops at prices ranging from $75 to $100 per car for the whole season. This is a good price and insures an excellent profit. Canteloupes are of good quality and have been selling at $2 a crate and upwards.

ATLANTIANS ARE HONORED BY B. Y. P. U. CONVENTION

A party of seventy-five Atlantians has returned from the annual state convention at Macon of the Baptists Young People's Union, were Rev. William Russell Owen, of Atlanta, was named head of the organization.

Another Atlantian honored with a state office was J. W. Little, who was named treasurer. The convention next year will be at Sandersville.

At the convention in Macon were 251 delegates. Last year only eighty-seven delegates attended. The increased atendance is due largely to the work of F. H. Leavell, field secretary, who is devoting his entire time to work for the union.

B. H. S. CLASS OF '08 TO BANQUET FRIDAY NIGHT

A happy event planned for Friday night is the banquet to be given at Durand's cafe by the graduates of the Boys' High school in 1908.

A member of the banquet committee has compiled some interesting statistics of the class, showing that out of forty-eight members four have married and seven now have the lawyer's shingle hanging out. Eight have graduated from different colleges, and a score or more have begun to achieve success in the field of work they have chosen.

Plans for the banquet are in the hands of Willis Milner, H. G. Bedinger, William Candler, Paul Carpenter and George Osborne.

Insane Man Taken For Burglar When He Escapes Keeper

Isom Petree, who had been out of the insane asylum on parole for some time and staying at 490 Whitehall street under guard, escaped the vigilance of his keeper Monday night and narrowly escaped being shot for a burglar.

Coatless and hatless, Petree slipped out of the Whitehall street house about 9:20 o'clock while his guard was taking a snooze. He fled down Whitehall street, turned the corner of Humphries, and ran up on the porch of 20 South Humphries, the residence of A. J. Leslie.

Sergeant Luck, of the police force, was passing the house at the time on his bicycle. He saw a man on the dark porch apparently attempting to open the window. Dismounting from his machine, he stole toward the supposed burglar.

At about the same time Mrs. Leslie awoke and heard some one fumbling at the window. She aroused her husband, who crept downstairs with his revolver in his hand.

With Mr. Leslie closing in on him from within, and Officer Luck approaching from the street, Petree find in the nick of time. Leaping the porch rail, he ran around the corner of the house before either the officer or Mr. Leslie could fire. Officer Luck pursued him by back lots to the house on Whitehall street, where the true character of the alleged burglar was revealed. Petree probably will be taken back to the asylum.

MARY FRANCES ELLIS DIED TUESDAY MORNING

Little Mary Frances Ellis, the one-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ellis, died at 4 o'clock Tuesday morning, at 180 Grant street, the home of Mrs. Mary Nally, with whom Mr. and Mrs. Ellis have lived for some time.

Mr. Ellis is a clerk at the post office, and has many friends who sympathize with him and his wife in their loss. The funeral service will take place at 3:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, from the Church of the Immaculate Conception. Interment will be at West View cemetery.

The following officers were elected at a meeting of the Atlanta Society of Dental Surgeons, held in Carnegie library Friday night, at which a number of addresses were made: Dr. M. D. Huff, one year; Dr. Claud M. Hughes, two years; Dr. C. Edward Buchanan, three years.

The executive board chosen was: Dr. T. P. Hinman, president; Dr. W. E. Lambright, vice-president; Dr. Thad Morrison, secretary; Dr. DeLos Hill, treasurer; Dr. Sam Silverman, librarian.

MARY TRIBBLE MAY NOT LIVE THROUGH TUESDAY

Death of Little Girl Who Swallowed Crayons Is Hourly Expected

Reports at the home of Policeman W. C. Tribble, 7 Porter place, East Atlanta, Tuesday morning, were to the effect that his seven-year-old daughter Mary would not live through the day.

The little girl who has been unconscious for two weeks as the result, it is believed, of eating some colored crayons, is said to be sinking rapidly. Dr. S. T. Stone, who is attending the child, was with her all night Monday, is said, but declares that there is very little ohpe for her recovery.

It is not known as yet whether the crayons which it is believed the little girl ate, have been analyzed. Doctors have expressed themselves as absolutely sure that these caused her illness, and it is a certainty that she did eat them, as the marks of her teeth are plainly visible on a number of them.

At 12:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon it was reported at the Tribble home that little Mary was still alive, although she was steadily growing weaker.

NO SUBSTITUTE COULD DO THIS.

No inferior substitute, but only the genuine Foley Kidney Pills could have rid J. F. Wallich, Bartlett, Nebr., of his kidney trouble. He says: "I was bothered with backache, and the pain would run up to the back of my head, and I had spells of dizziness. I took Foley Kidney Pills and they did the work and I am now entirely rid of kidney trouble. My father-in-law, now past 92 years, has taken them and they have added years to his life." For sale by all dealers. (Advt.)

HUSBAND ATTACKS MAN WIFE MINISTERED TO

Rudolph Otter Draws $25.75 Fine—Mrs. Otter Says She Was Playing Nurse's Part

Rudolph Otter was fined $25.75 by Recorder Broyles Tuesday morning for attacking Charles Olsen in a rooming house at 15 Houston street, Saturday night. A charge of disorderly conduct against Olsen was dismissed.

Mrs. Otter was a witness against her husband. She testified that she had been separated from Otter for about a year and that he called at her home Saturday to visit his four-year-old son. Olsen, she said, had suddenly become ill and she was ministering to him when her husband entered and started the fight. Her testimony was substantiated by that of other witnesses.

In the fight Mrs. Olsen was struck by a fragment of a water pitcher thrown by one of the combatants and was slightly cut on the face.

BETTER ROADS WANTED BY WEST DEKALB CLUB

A meeting of the West DeKalb Road Improvement club has been called for Friday night in the school house at Kirkwood.

A large attendance is urged of all members and others who are interested in the construction of a good direct road from East Lake vicinity to Atlanta.

Comment will be made upon the excellent work recently done on Boulevard Drive through the town of Kirkwood, and plans will be discussed for extending the work westward into Atlanta and eastward into DeKalb.

MAYOR STILL HOLDS UP CREMATORY CONTRACT

Insists It Must Contain No Reference to Contract Overruled by Supreme Court

Mayor Woodward has not yet finished his examination of the crematory contract submitted to him last week by W. D. Ellis, Jr., the assistant city attorney, and it may be several days before he is through with it.

He states that from what he has already seen of the contract he is prepared to say he does not like it and will insist that the whoe basis of the contract be changed.

"In every contract they have drawn since the supreme court held the original contract to be illegal, they have harked back to the original contract," he said Monday. "My contention is that the new contract must contain no reference to the original contract, becaus the original contract is now a dead letter. In other words, I want a contract that is cut new from the whole cloth. That is the only kind of contract, in my opinion, that would enable the city to recover from the bonding company, should the plant fail to fulfill its guarantees. They will have to draw such a contract before I will sign it."

The mayor said he understood that the supreme court's decision was entered on the superior court records Monday morning, thereby rendering operative the injunction against further work on the plant.

"In my opinion this means the Destructor company cannot continue work on the plant, if anybody should object, even though council did pass a special resolution authorizing the company to go ahead," said the mayor. "But I won't press this point, as I have decided to oppose the crematory no further, provided they make a contract suitable to me."

RECEIVER IS APPOINTED FOR HARRY SILVERMAN

Three bankruptcy petitions were filed in the federal court on Tuesday.

An involuntary action and a petition for receiver were brought against Harry Silverman, proprietor of a restaurant and delicatessen shop.

The creditors were Fain & Stamps, J. N. Hirsch and the National Paper company. J. N. Hirsch was appointed receiver. Mr. Silverman admitted his insolvency.

Voluntary petitions were filed by Lucius A. Dozier, a stock salesman, with liabilities of $710.50 and assets of $355, and by Stuart P. Williamson, a clerk, with liabilities of $1,234 and assets of $50.

For Your Health's Sake Drink

HAMPTON SPRINGS SULPHUR AND MINERAL WATER

While this water is known as a Sulphur Water, sulphur is only one of its valuable minerals. When accustomed to its use it is a most pleasant and palatable water to drink, and quenches thirst most satisfactorily. But its greatest value is its medicinal qualities, which make the system immune from germ diseases and cures rheumatism, indigestion, stomach, kidney, bladder and skin diseases. It makes you well, and keeps you well by its use. It is recommended by many of the best physicians in the country. So far as known it is the only water containing such a large proportion of sulphur that will retain its full strength for years, in air-tight containers.

Hampton Springs Sulphur and Mineral Water

So satisfied are the owners of Hampton Springs of the great curative value to be secured by its use that they guarantee any user of one package or barrel, containing 120 pints of this wonderful water, when taken according to instructions, will either improve or cure the complaints for which it is recommended, and failing to do so, on return of the empty package to the Springs, the money paid for the water will be refunded.

This water is now distributed in a wholesale way by Jacobs' Pharmacy in Atlanta, who supply the retail druggists, hotels, restaurants, cafes and consumers in full packages, 120 pint bottles, $7.00 per package. Twelve half-gallon bottles in crate in Atlanta. It is retailed at their own stores and other places above named at 10 cents per bottle.

STARS THAT "USE-TO-BE" SHED GARB OF BAPTIST MINISTERS AND TROUNCE "NEVER-WASERS"

"Johnny" White, "Cole" Ridley, "Charley" Daniel and Others of Like Dignity Become Boys Again at Annual Ball Game

"Put 'er over, Caleb!" yelled Billy Hambrick, sometime pastor of the Cooper Street Baptist church, to Pitcher Cale Ridley, known in public life as Rev. Caleb A. Ridley, pastor of the Central Baptist church.

"Johnny" White assumed a Cobbesque pose at the p latter, shaking the hickory defiantly in the direction of Cale Ridley, as the latter began to wind up for a fast one.

Behind the first base foul line the Rev. V. C. Norcross and the Rev. E. T. Spalding leaned forward from the bleacher seats on the brow of a sunny hill. Their eyes were eager, they caught their breath with excitement.

"Caleb 'll never strike 'm out," muttered Dr. Norcross.

"Betcher he does," hoarsely replied the Rev. Spalding.

Pitcher Ridley shot forward, the ball streaked past the p latter and the Rev. John E. White swung fruitlessly through the atmosphere.

Strike one," yelled the umpire, and the big game had begun.

Had a deacon of any one of the local Baptist churches been passing along Hemphill avenue, near the waterworks, Monday afternoon, and happened to glance down the hill toward the back lot, he would have been inexpressibly shocked. For there were the pillars of the Baptist faith in Atlanta, coats off, sleeves rolled up, yelling hoarsely in the throes of a most exciting ball game.

It was the occasion of the first annual picnic of the Atlanta Baptist Ministers' association, and the "Use-to-Bees" were crossing bats with the "Never-Waseres" in a battle which will go down in baseball history.

The ball game was the big event of the day replete with fun and frolic.

Early Monday morning thirty-four Baptist preachers stole out of their respective homes, with baskets on their arms, and stealthily hied them to the Luckie street car line. On the green lawn beside the lake at the waterworks they met in solemn business session, which was concluded as fast as possible in order that all might get to the "eats" in a hurry.

NO WOMENFOLK THERE.

No good womenfolk were there to watch these men eat. It was a wondrous sight. Many a good deaconess would have been surprised had she seen the quantity of ham sandwiches and lemonade that her favorite pulpit orator stowed away.

When the ministers finally arose from the table to leave the "scraps" to the tender mercies of "Uncle Robert," each had proved himself a trencherman whose equal would be hard to find in many a long day.

PLAY IN BROILING SUN.

Yet so strenuous were these ministers that no sooner had the dinner been concluded than the ball game was begun, in the midst of a broiling, hot sun.

Dr. White captained the "Use-to-Bees," Dr. Ridley the "Never-Wasers."

The melee started with Johnny White's team at the bat. Cale Ridley was pitcher for his club, with Prof J. T. Williams holding down the initial bag, "Billy" Hambrick, "Artie" Gordon, "Bill" Senfell in the outfield, and "Lin" Flury on short.

In the first inning the "Use-To-Be's" proved that they had the better team, both in skill and deep guile. Dr. W. B. Riley, of Minneapolis, who is preaching at the Baptist Tabernacle, strode to the platter.

His old friend, Cale Ridley, who had invited him to the picnic, straightway slipped over a fast one that caught Dr. Riley in the back of the head. As the batter trotted to first, rubbing his head, cries of "Saved by a wig!"—"Old hair-top!" followed him to first.

Whether the doctor had used consummate art in getting cracked on the "noodle" or whether Dr. Ridley just naturally had it in for him, is not known. The latter would seem to be the case, and later in the day Dr. Ridley was discovered back of a pine tree feeding Dr. Riley's hat to a "yaller" dog on the installment plan.

"USE-TER-BES" COME BACK.

At any rate, the beaning of Riley served to get Pitcher Ridley in the air. The "Use-Ter-Be's" filled the bags, and then Captain White came to the platter. He kicked in with a nice single to right, which cleared the sacks effectually. Others followed, giving Pitcher Ridley a terrific lacing. The "Use-Ter-Be's" had counted three runs before the last man was out.

The depth and ingenuity of Captain White then only was discovered. As the first "Never-Waser" batter rapped on the pan he found a dangerous looking southpaw pitcher in the box. One, two, three, the "Never-Wasers" best stickers fell before his benders.

Cries of "ringer! ringer! Where did White get him?" resounded through the air. A long discussion followed.

The "Never-Wasers" accused White of running in a professional on them, but the doctor stoutly maintained that his pitcher was an orthodox Baptist. It was finally decided that the mysterious southpaw would have to resign after that single disastrous inning in the box.

"CHARLIE" DANIEL STARS.

The game rocked along for four more innings. Many exciting plays occurred. Outfielder Charlie Daniel displayed great nerve when he caught a terrific fly ball with his bare hands; Third Sacker O'Kelly was a star of the game, his long hikes after fly balls being one of the features of the contest.

W. T. Smith vied with Dr. Riley for honors by receiving a hard-thrown ball on his head in the third inning. It was remarked by the fans in the bleachers Messrs. Norcross, Spalding, Davis, Sims, Skelton and Vaughn—the last-named taking it easy under an oak tree in right field—that one man who was hit had more hair than anybody in the game, while the other was probably the most bald-headed one in the bunch. It was strange, the fans argued, that the bald-headed player seemed to feel the least pain of the two.

Dr. Smith and Dr. White starred, with an average of 1,000 per cent in batting. The accuracy of these figures is open to question, however, as Dr. White is known to have driven one to deep right which was good for four bases at least and to have been thrown out at first on the play.

At any rate, the scorer gave the final figures as 10 to 3 in favor of the "Use-Ter-Be's," whereupon both teams joined in a long yell for each other.

ROME, Ga., June 24.—A number of Romans are p lanning to attend the annual revival at the Sam Jones tabernacle in Cartersville, starting August 3, and continuing for two weeks. The evangelists in charge will be Rev. Bob Jones and Rev. Gypsy Smith. Bob Jones is well remembered here for a sensational revival service he conducted in Rome last spring.

No man is Stronger Than his Stomach

LET the greatest athlete have dyspepsia and his strength will soon fail. One's stamina—forcefullness and strength of mind or muscle depend upon the blood, and the blood in turn, requires a healthy stomach, for the stomach is the laboratory where the food is digested and such elements are taken up—or assimilated—which make blood. In consequence all the organs of the body, such as heart, lungs, liver and kidneys, as well as the nervous system, feel the bad effect if the stomach is deranged.

The Medical Adviser by R. V. Pierce, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y. answers hosts of delicate questions about which every man or woman, single or married ought to know. Sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay for wrapping and mailing.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

helps the stomach to digest food properly, starts the liver into new activity, removing the poisons from the blood, and the various organs get rich, red blood, instead of being illy nourished. The refreshing influence of this extract of native medicinal plants has been favorably known for over 40 years. Everywhere some neighbor can tell you of the good it has done.

Sold by all medicine dealers in liquid or tablet form, or send 50 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, and a trial box will be mailed you.

MEN AND RELIGION BULLETIN NO. 61.

Chaingangs in Georgia.

"You Have Turned Justice Into Gall."

Amos VI, 12

Six thousand one hundred thirty-nine souls are in our chaingangs.

At dawn, the striped suits appear, the shackles clank in our city streets and country roads.

Women and children shuddering pass them as they work and sweat under the eyes of armed men until darkness draws near to hide the marks of their infamy.

AGAIN THEY ARE CHAINED TOGETHER.

And like monstrous striped snakes with men for vertebrae and chains for spinal cords, the squads in the gathering gloom squirm, shuffling and clinking their weary way, back into camp.

A gang halts before a door. They stand, excepting one. He runs forward drawing from between them the rattling chain now unlocked. To the ground it drops.

The men enter a long dimly lighted room.

On both sides beds are jammed together forming an aisle. In its center at intervals are boxes or cans, and tubs. Around its length goes another chain.

The men remove their clothes. They cannot get off their shackles. Begins a horrible clanking. The chain is being passed from shackle to shackle, linking man to man. Repeatedly it crashes to the floor between them. At last, its ends are bolted to the wall on both sides of the door. They are again one in their wretchedness.

Here and there one drags the chain to a tub and washes. Man after man uses the same foul water.

Then comes food borne on a hand-barrow.

Each man gets his rations.

Seated on his bed, he eats.

Before his face waits the unspeakable box, hideous receptacle for unnamable human filth.

CHAINED TOGETHER, THE MEN LIE DOWN TO SLEEP.

To their mutual misery—to the lash hanging at the door—to the sting of conscience and the agony of memory in the long hours of the night are added the bite of the leg shackle on the naked skin and the clank of the endless chain as they turn and toss trying to rest.

Georgia daily thus degrades and drives men deeper into hell.

Statistics are meager as to the thousands of misdemeanor, or short term men.

But two thousand eight hundred ninety of the six thousand one hundred thirty-nine are felony convicts. They are under long sentences.

Among these are two twelve-year-old boys, and two of thirteen.

Three of fourteen, eleven of fifteen, twenty of sixteen.

Thirty of seventeen, eighty-five of eighteen, ninety-one of nineteen.

One hundred twenty-three of twenty and one hundred sixty-three of twenty-one.

Children are out of place in convict camps.

YOU SHOULD NOT CHAIN FIRST OFFENDERS TO HARDENED CRIMINALS.

Ancients fettered a living man to a corpse to kill him by the decay of the dead.

You would not kill the young man who slipped.

But you do worse; you chain him to the old offender, the moral leper; you thus poison his soul and devote him to a living death of crime.

He comes forth the habitual criminal, a menace to the living.

When folly weds cruelty, their offspring is this affront to God and man.

From it, save the boy.

Sixteen hundred forty-five of these long term men have wives.

At home? Have they homes? You know not.

You are therefore punishing sixteen hundred forty-five women and, without doubt, over five thousand children. You deprive them of their support.

WHY? WHAT IS THEIR OFFENSE? THEIR BIRTH.

But their fathers and husbands have committed crimes?

Yes. And in defiling zebra suits and clanking chains, they pay.

They build your roads; under the fear of your lash, they work; but their degradation and heart breaking labor brings no morsel of food to those women and children; their shame does not clothe their wives and babies.

Shall the sons ——

Shall the daughters ——

Shall the wives follow in their steps, since great Georgia takes their all, the labor of these men and gives nothing in return?

Boast not of our roads today. Each foot of them has been built at frightful cost—the sorrow and suffering of women and children, and the humiliating degradation of men. Rather should we be ashamed.

TO BUILD ROADS IS WISE.

But to make criminals in order to build roads is madness. And to crush men, women and children in the building is not to be endured.

Neither is necessary.

Roads can be built, and men made in the building. Elsewhere it is being done.

It can and will be done in Georgia.

You will help.

Speak to your representatives in the house and in the senate.

Ask them to support those measures that will enable our officials to free us from our disgrace.

It is due to lack of thought, and not to criminally heartless intent; men in authority do not willfully degrade and hurt their fellow creatures.

In Christ's name forget politics! Stop and think!

Two years ago, Schlitz adopted the Brown Bottle.

Scientists, world famous, had rendered opinions that beer exposed to light cannot remain pure.

One year ago, Schlitz corroborated its claims by reprinting such parts of these opinions as were pertinent.

Today, the last link in this long chain of incontrovertible evidence is complete.

We reproduce herewith in miniature the printed matter on covers or caution cards taken from cases of beer sold by brewers using the light bottle.

Read them.

They are self-explanatory. They are eloquent.

These competitors admit the weakness of their own product when exposed to light, by warning the public to "Keep the cover on."

ANDERSON AND ALLEN BOTH SAY THEY'LL WIN

Judge Allen Claims 25 Votes and Anderson 32 in Race for Presidency

Election eve statements were furnished The Journal Tuesday afternoon by both sides of the contest for president of the senate, which is being warmly waged by Judge John T. Allen, of the Twentieth district, and J. Randolph Anderson, of the First district.

Both sides claim victory. Judge Allen asserts that he will have twenty-five votes on the first ballot and Senator Anderson claims that he will have thirty-two. There are but forty-four members of the senate, so it is quite evident that one or the other, or both, are mistaken in their figures.

WHAT ANDERSON SAYS.

In part, Senator Anderson's statement, issued by himself, follows:

"My election to the presidency of the senate is now a certainty. Nothing now remains to demonstrate it but the formality of registering the vote. When my headquarters were opened here on yesterday I had received the positive unqualified written pledges of twenty-eight senators and a personal canvass of the senators had satisfied me that of the remaining members of the senate my opponent could count positively on only seven votes because the remaining nine were known to be not committed at all.

"At the preliminary caucus we had yesterday afternoon every senator who had then arrived in Atlanta was present or accounted for and I had received letters or telegrams from those not yet arrived telling me when to expect them and that they could be counted on. Since that caucus four of the nine senators I had down as not committed have voluntarily come forward and pledged us their support, one by letter and the others in person. This gives our side now thirty-two certain votes.

"In the statements given out to the press by my opponent and his friends a manifest attempt has been made to create the impression that big corporations and manufacturing interests are backing my candidacy. There is absolutely no truth in this suggestion. From all that I can discover the power of the so-called big corporations seems to be lined up against me in this fight.

"So far as my case is concerned I have heard and seen more evidences of railroad attorneys being against me than for me in this fight.

"It is also insiduously and busily whispered that I own large interests in certain manufactories—meaning breweries. Some years ago the Rev. Dr. Broughton openly made this charge and was promptly called down. At that time I stated that I did have ten shares of stock in the Savannah Brewing Company, which I had owned for many years and that I had no other interest whatever of that kind. Since that time I have disposed of that small interest and I no longer have a single share of stock in any manufactory or other interest of that character."

JUDGE ALLEN'S STATEMENT.

The statement issued from Judge Allen's headquarters follows in part:

"Referring to the article in the morning paper relative to the position of Mr. Anderson, and the present status of the race for the presidency of the senate, Judge Allen insists that the claims of Mr. Anderson are far from the real facts of the situation. He claims enough pledged votes to elect him.

"He claims at least twenty-five certain votes on the first ballot. While Judge Allen brings no charges against Mr. Anderson, he claims that Anderson's cocksure assertions are merely a political play of the ordinary type. Judge Allen claims to have no corporate alliances, no connection with the liquor interests of this state of any character whatsoever. He is absolutely untrammelled by any corporate entanglements or alliances whatever. He claims that if elected he will go into the office of president without any embarrassments on these lines.

"Judge Allen rather resents the statements as to his position on the liquor question, but does not believe that any members of the senate treat the misrepresentations seriously.

"Referring to the statement in the morning paper that Mr. Anderson had sent a message to Judge Allen to the effect that he would exhibit to him his alleged signed obligation to support him by members of the senate, Judge Allen states that no such message was delivered and no such offer made."

RECORDER SOAKS SEVERAL STREET TAX DELINQUENTS

Prisoners in Court on Other Charges Are Called on to Show Receipts

A score or more prisoners were instructed to pay their street tax before the end of the week, or work it out on municipal thoroughfares, by City Recorder Nash R. Broyles Tuesday morning. Only one of the many prisoners brought before the court on various charges could produce tax receipts, and a second case was lodged against each of them.

In most instances, particularly among the negroes, no street tax had been paid for four or five years. City Marshal Fuller, however, decided not to collect amounts more than two years overdue under the belief that it might work a hardship on some.

DAN HUGHES TO GET PRICE ASSISTANT JOB

Son of Congressman Hughes Slated for Agricultural Office, Say Observers

It was generally conceded Tuesday afternoon that Dan Hughes, son of Congressman Dudley M. Hughes, of the Third congressional district, would be appointed assistant commissioner of agriculture by Commissioner J. D. Price when he takes office next Monday.

Mr. Price still insists that he has not yet decided whom he will name for his assistant, but the well posted politicians who are in Atlanta for the opening of the legislature, almost without exception, predict Mr. Hughes' appointment.

Mr. Hughes possesses an excellent education and is well trained in the science of agriculture.

W. C. T. U. SEEKS TO DEFEAT J. R. ANDERSON

State President Sends Out Letters Saying That He Is Foe of Prohibition

Mrs. T. E. Patterson, state president of the Women's Christian Temperance union, has sent letters to all chapters in the state of Georgia asking the members to do all in their power to defeat Senator J. R. Anderson's candidacy for the presidency of the senate. They allege he is the foe of prohibition in Georgia.

Mrs. Paterson's letter declares that Mr. Anderson is identified with the liquor interests. It says that he has fought the temperance forces at every point, led the filibuster, delayed the legislation, defeated prohibition measures, and is in favor of a "wet" state.

The letter closes with an urgent plea that all men and women who wish to see prohibition in Georgia work day and night to defeat Mr. Anderson. "Fast and pray," says the letter, "in order that this enemy of our state and our cause may be defeated."

Wanted Silks With Prices Cut to Thirds and Halves

The Selling Will Start at Nine o'Clock

A Silk Sale to reckon with!

The Reasons:

Here is a variety that rather fully covers the whole silk question.

Qualities are as fine as we can buy in regular season for "regular" selling. They are best at their prices.

Styles are those chosen because they were choice, distinctive.

And

Prices are now cut down to a third and a half.

Certainly all the elements that would go to make a Silk Opportunity mark this event. Now, then, to your needs!

What are they? A dress, a waist, a skirt, a suit, a coat—it matters little, just read on—

$1.69 For $3 to $4 a yd. Silks

Yes, $1.69 a yd. for $3.00 and $4.00 Crepe Meteors and Charmeuse, fabrics fashion will favor as fondly in the fall as she has this season. They drape and "cling" more gracefully, perhaps, than any other silks. And you may select from mais, brown, helio, apricot, taupe, Alice and wistaria. All are 44 inches wde.

79c For $1 a yd. Wash Silks

For wash silks that seem to grow in popular favor as the weather grows warmer. The silk shirt for men as well as for women—is the cool shirt. And these silks are the dependable kind that are true to their name—wash silks. Plain and corded, white and black, white and helio, white and navy, white and gray—stripes of various widths. 33 inches wide.

69c For $1.50 to $2.25 a yd. Silks

Perhaps the finist values of the sale are among these. We miss our guess if the crowds are not thick around them. There are 36-inch chiffon, taffetas in plain and two-toned shades—light blue, green, mais, yellow, tan; lilac and blue, tan and blue, green and rose, black and green, there are bordered foulards, there are figured chiffons, small designs in exquisite shades, white eoliennes, marquisettes, in colors for evening dresses—all 44 inches wide and none was less than $1.50 a yd!

49c For 85c & $1 a yd. Foulards

The quality is told by the names they bear—but the patterns! Choosing a dress will be a delight for here is variety—great abundant variety that leads to perfect satisfaction, there are black and white stripes, there are little cubes and flowers and dots thrown across surfaces of brown ,tan, navy ,gray ,wistaria and heliotrope. No question ,one to your liking. 23 to 24 inches wide.

A Greater-Than-Ever Remnant Day in the Wash Goods

At Nine o'Clock

The wash goods buyer's return form New York with great quantities of new merchandise meant a crusade against short lengths—now they are gathered, every kind, making up the largest and finest quantity of remnants we have offered this season.

Tomorrow at 9 o'clock we will let you at them!

It will be a splendid time to select waists, skirts, dresses and underwear for yourself and children. Hardly a wanted wash material is not represented—for they are remnants, you know, and only wanted materials become remnants.

Colored Cottons

A world of ginghams, one kind after another—checks, stripes, plaids, zephyr ginghams, fine imported ginghams, colorings that are fast and as pretty as can be, bordered, figured, striped and plain voiles and marquisettes, crepes in such great demand, figured and plain shades, soisettes, piques, cotton suitings that look like linens, silk mills percales, galateas, kimono crepes and still the list could be extended to the end that about all colored cottons would be included.

Linens

Even table linens are included, dress linens, the smooth French finish and the rough ramie linens in white and colors, linen lawns, cambrics, crashes, pillow casing, bath toweling, butcher's linen, brown apron linen and crashes.

White Goods

Flaxon, plain and checked and striped, dimities linens, percales, Indian linons, batistes, French and Persian lawns, French and English nainsooks, madras, figured and striped, dotted Swisses, curtain Swisses, lingerie cloth, repps, poplins, piques and others.

"BUYING INTO A LAW-SUIT"

An Announcement of Great Importance to all prospective buyers of electric pleasure cars

For the information of the general public, dealer and buyer alike, we desire to announce once again that the Ohio Electric Car Company holds basic patents on the following principles of electric-car construction, and the application thereof:

1. Double drive from both front and rear seat.
2. Chainless, direct shaft drive without universal joint.
3. Magnetic cntrol, including magnetic brake.

In this connection we wish to quote a paragraph from an announcement made by us in our publicity on April 29th, 1913, as follows:

"Other manufacturers themselves admit that the double drive makes the single-drive car out of date. Every manufacturer would gladly adopt the double drive were it not for our basic patents. It is safe to say that the next few months will see several attempts to get around these patents—for the double drive is the car of the future. It is well to remember, however, that we will defend in the courts of last resort our exclusive right to the double drive principle."

Our attorneys advise us that our patents on all the features named are legally unassailable.

Notice is therefore hereby given to all concerned, whether manufacturer dealer or buyer, that we shall prosecute to the full extent of the law any infringement of our patents in the manufacture, sale or use of any electric vehicle containing infringing features.

All prospective buyers are advised to familiarize themselves with the features covered by our patents before purchasing any car.

Out-of-the-Ordinary-Mid-Summer Hats

At $5.00, $7.50, $10.00

We use out-of-the-ordinary advisedly.

They are, beautifully.

Through our connection with the shop of Estelle Mershon, 20 E. 46th St., New York, we keep in closest touch with millinery styles as they appear in the great metropolis.

We are apprised of the new things at once, and then our splendid corps of milliners sets to work---the result is $5.00, $7.50 and $10.00 hats that differ from those about town. But you must see just how they do differ. Right now, and there are fresh ones every day---literally every day---there are a number of particularly dainty white and light colored hats of hemp peanut straw, with feathers and wings placed at "dangerous" angles, with crowns wreathed with flowers, with crowns covered with white maline. One at $5.00, of notable charm, has a crown wrapped with white brocade silk, a bow of the same silk stands up right in the back---the unusual part is the way the silk is edged with maline. It is $5.00.

But this is but one of many.

See them all.

You, too, will say the prettiest $5.00, $7.50 and $10.00 hats are at Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co.'s

What we need is a more elastic per capita.

At any rate, the June days are growing rarer.

It is also the open season for the amateur fisherman.

Welcome to the advance guard of our legislature, sometimes called solons.

The Washington baseball team continues to do credit to a Democratic administration.

In Defense of Roosters.

Oh what sordid, soulless times have we fallen!

The dawn-song of Chanticleer, which Rostand likens to "a gold-threaded needle knitting the hills to the sky," has been adjudged by a Pennsylvania court to be a nuisance which, in cities at least, must be suppressed. "If a man desires to have a rooster and hens, he should remove to the country and let his town neighbor sleep in peace." So runs the tyrannous decision against which, we are sure, all wholesome-blooded folk, whatever their politics, will favor a speedy exercise of the judicial recall.

This dusty machine we call civilization is robbing the earth of its primeval charms. We must travel far these days to hear a sky-lark and even our poets would scarcely recognize the voice of a nightingale as,

> "The same that ofttimes hath,
> Charmed casements opening on the foam
> Of perilous seas in faery lands forlorn."

should they be so blest as to hear her song. Indeed, we have reached a stage where to the average mortal the rooster's buoyant melody is the one remaining link with what is idyllic and unspoiled in life. Far from suppressing the rooster's voice, we should rise and swear by all our halidoms that he shall be free to crow whenever or wherever the valiant spirit of his sires stirs within his goozle!

A rooster's crow is not a disturbance to sleep but on the contrary a comforting reminder that all's right with the world. It only adds to the soft drowsiness of the night, when wafted through the still watches and any well constituted person can turn over and snore the better for having heard this honest note.

The amateur farm expert is now in our midst.

Certain members of congress would like to have Wilson off their hands.

Already the June graduate is being heard from at the Georgia peach packing shed.

The season has hit the perfect medium—too hot for whisky straight but ideal for near beer.

Peachtree Road.

It seems after all that the insufferable condition of Peachtree road between Fifteenth street and Buckhead is not to be relieved in time to meet the heavy demands of summer travel. Several weeks ago the Board of County Commissioners adopted a resolution by Chairman Smith authorizing the immediate repair of this important but sorely neglected thoroughfare. We are now told, however, that men and machinery for this work will not be available until some thirty or sixty days hence. In the meantime traffic must worry along as best it can in circumstances which are about the worst to be conceived.

If the disgraceful conditions of Peachtree road had arisen recently, such delay might be excused. But this great highway which is essential to business and agricultural interests alike has been well-nigh impassable at certain points for long months past. The need of improvements and repairs has been continually urged; and with the opening of summer, when the volume of traffic is naturally heaviest, it became evident that further postponement would mean a grave public injustice.

It is not to be denied that the upkeep of Fulton county's roads is a serious problem and that the commissioners have their hands full at all times and especially at this season. But it is none the less apparent that the thousands of people who use Peachtree road, citizens from every part of the county, are entitled to a fairer deal than they now receive. No thoroughfare so important as this should be continually inspected and repairs made promptly as the need of them arises. Any other policy is unbusinesslike as well as unjust to public interests.

Premature gray hairs cause the good to dye young.

Take things easy, if they don't belong to others.

Garbage and love letters should be burned before they create trouble.

Once in a great while there is a political boss who gets away with it at home.

It may be better to give than to receive, but few of us are in a position to keep it up indefinitely.

Many of the world's great men are unknown to fame. They are great because they share their pleasures with others and keep their troubles to themselves.

A Fright Beginning For Currency Reform.

President Wilson's address to Congress on the need of a new banking and currency system was a singularly forceful statement of certain truths with which thoughtful business opinion the country over will agree. In this, as in all proposals for far-reaching legislation, there is a diversity of judgment concerning matters of detail; but as to the importance of prompt action there is little or no difference among honest minds, nor is there any serious difference over the general course to be pursued. It is clear, in these circumstances, that conflicting ideas will be reconciled and that without further delay some practical measure, which will relieve business suspense and forestall any possible stringency, will be wrought out and put into use.

The President indicates that the measure drawn by Congressional committees in conjunction with Secretary McAdee was prepared "with his counsel and approval."

Its general principles will undoubtedly have the administration's earnest support, a fact cistinctly in its favor. At the same time it will be open, as was the tariff bill, to well considered amendments. The important thing is that a broad, working basis on which all sincere advocates of banking and currency reform may find common ground has been established; a definite step toward results has been taken.

For years past the need of a more elastic system of currency has been manifest; today it is imperative. While other nations have revised their banking and currency methods to meet changed conditions, the United States is still fettered to the plan of an outgrown age. At all times unsatisfactory, this failure to move forward has at length become intolerable. The far-reaching revision of the tariff demands a corresponding and accompanying revision of currency and banking laws, to the end that such readjustments as are necessary under the new order may be normally and easily made. These two questions concern a common problem; neither can be solved independently of the other. It is only through a reconstruction of the banking and currency system, as the President says, that the country can reap the full benefit of the tariff reduction soon to be effected. "What will it profit us to be quit of one kind of monopoly, if we are to remain in the grip of another and a more effective kind. What shall we say, if we make fresh enterprise necessary and also make it very difficult by leaving all else except the tariff just as we found it?"

By reducing and in some instances removing the high tariff tax which fostered monopoly and crushed the spirit of free enterprise and competition, Democracy will release new commercial and industrial forces. But unless these new forces have available means of sustaining themselves and of turning their freedom to practical account, comparatively little will have been accomplished. The power of money as well as the power of production must be taken from the tyranny of particular groups and alliances of men. There must be freedom of credit, if there is to be any economic freedom worthy the name, for, as the President strikingly puts it, "The tyrannies of business, big and little, lie within the field of credit."

> "We must have," as he says, "a currency, not rigid as now, but readily, elastically responsive to sound credit, the expanding and contracting credits of every day transactions, the normal ebb and flow of personal and corporate dealings. Our banking laws must mobilize reserves; must not permit the concentration anywhere in a few hands of the monetary resources of the country or their use for speculative purposes in such volume as to hinder or impede or stand in the way of other more legitimate, more fruitful uses. And the control of the system of banking and of issue which our new laws are to set up must be public not private, must be vested in the government itself, so that the banks may be the instruments, not the masters, of business and of individual enterprise and initiative."

This is, in outline, the purpose of the banking and currency bill now to be considered by Congress. It is not advanced as a perfect measure but as a practical basis and starting point for legislation that will meet the country's urgent needs. Changes in its particulars, there will doubtless be; but it is a significant and cheering fact that to the broad principles of this bill, men of widely divergent views have rallied, convinced that it opens a safe path through the problems of this great issue. Equally significant is the fact that banking opinion and business opinion throughout the nation are united in the belief that some constructive measure of this kind should be enacted.

On this, as on the tariff issue, President Wilson is backed by public sentiment and public judgment. Thus suported the administration will accomplish the one reform as certainly as the other, and will accomplish it, according to all indications, at the present session of Congress.

Editorials In Brief

An Englishman has invented a harness which holds the fishing pole so that the angler's hands are free to handle the bait. Not 'arf, bad, but why cawn't the bally angler do with only a quart or so of bait and handle it with one hand?—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A news item from New Hampshire says: "North Haverhill farmers loaded on the stock train, last Monday, 39 hogs, for which they received $648.90." That is a little more than an average of $17.56 per hog. There should not be a poor farmer in New England, so long as they can average that much for hogs weighing around 300 pounds alive. It is about 6 cents a pound and every farmer in the days of corn raising for feeding stock knew he could raise hogs to the 300-pound limit for less than 3 cents a pound. —Worcester Telegram.

THE PHILIPPINES

XII—IRRIGATION AND ARTESIAN WELLS.

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

When the United States cheerfully gave Spain $20,000,000 for the Philippine islands after they had been won by force of arms, it did not happen to think that the money could be better used for the well-being of the natural owners of the islands, the Filipinos. That sum would have given the people the public works that it has taken us ten years to build by piecemeal appropriations raised from the taxes of the Filipinos. It would have given them extensive irrigation systems in the various islands with money to spare, and would have saved the $70,000,000 that have gone out of the islands in the past fourteen years for the purchase of rice. As it is, Spain got the $20,000,000 and the Filipinos were still importing rice. Rainfall in the islands is heavy, but it is so unevenly distributed throughout the year that the necessity for irrigation has been universally recognized. Owing to lack of funds and other causes no definite steps were taken in regard to irrigation and artesian wells until 1908. Within the past four years a great deal of planning and considerable has been done in turning out an irrigation system that would be both economical and adequate. Costly mistakes were made in putting such important work under the direction of young engineers or those of slight experience in irrigation. The employment of real irrigation experts was contemplated at one time. Negotiations were opened with a renowned Britisher who had done wonders on a large scale in Egypt and India. This man was so interested in the opportunity presented to help along other people, under a foreign flag, that he agreed to come to the islands at the same salary that he was drawing in Egypt. This salary was $25,000 a year, and the Philippine officials were promptly struck dumb with horror. They turned to less experienced men, earnest and enthusiastic enough, but with very little knowledge of tropical irrigation and engineering. The result was the loss on one project of a sum greater than the entire year's salary that the British expert asked for, to say nothing of the waste of over a year of valuable time.

This was the San Miguel system in Tarlac province, about sixty-five miles from Manila. It was the first large irrigation project and was to irrigate 4,000 hectares in the Tarlac valley and was to cost $150,000. In July, 1911, the dam then nearing completion, was destroyed by a flood. The dam failed at an extraordinary flood during the rainy season, but before the peak of the flood was reached. A searching investigation proved that the dam was located at the wrong point, was inadequately designed and probably would have failed in an ordinary flood, according to the official report of the director of public works. The blame was put upon the shoulders of many individuals, and Director Greene felt that the time had come for a radical reform in the irrigation division, particularly when this disaster was considered in connection with the otherwise unsatisfactory progress of the irrigation work. The loss on this project was over $38,000, including some damage to the canal system which occurred at the same time. Investigation then showed that the project would cost over $1,000,000, at the rate of $136 per hectare as compared with the average cost of $125 per hectare in the United States.

A new chief irrigation engineer was brought out in the person of W. L. Gorton, who had had many years of experience in the United States reclamation service. Extensive changes in the personnel of the irrigation division were made. At the present time there is not in the service of the bureau a single engineer who is directly responsible for the design or estimate of this San Miguel system. Of course, it is true that costly engineering mistakes also attended the beginning of irrigation and hydro-electric developments in this and other conutries.

Irrigation work has gone on much better under Mr. Gorton and he gradually is working out the previous plan of the government which calls for an expenditure of from $375,000 to $500,000 a year for a number of years. Up to date about $1,000,000 has been spent on irrigation work since 1908. When this important work is finished Luzon, the Visayas and Mindanao will be provided with excellent irrigation systems which will be of tremendous aid to the people, as over fifty separate projects will then have been completed. In 1911 the bureau of lands, with funds supplied by the bureau of public works, made extensive cadastral surveys of irrigable areas that had been recommended for construction projects.

One small irrigation project was opened in 1910 in Bataan province which is across the bay from Manila. It works fairly well and is under the administration of the bureau of lands. The government has also some irrigation work on the friar land estates in Cavite and Laguna provinces. More than fifty head gates have been installed in these estates.

From now on the work will go ahead rapidly and thoroughly. A great aid will be the new irrigation law passed by the Philippine legislature early in 1912. This act is a thorough and comprehensive measure and is the result of much labor off the part of the bureau of public works and a special irrigation committee, and was discussed at two sessions of the legislature. This act provides in sufficient detail a system for the appropriation of public waters and for the determination of the existing rights thereof; for the public registration of all water rights; for the creation and use of water power; for the investigation, construction, maintenance and operation of all irrigation systems by the government; for the repayment of money expended therefor; for the construction, maintenance and operation of irrigations systems by private persons; for the inspection and regulation of all works pertaining to the use of water and penalties for its violation.

The efforts of the Philippine government to give the Filipinos good water have been more successful. Here is a proposition which the Filipinos understand, and they are much more enthusastic over the digging of a hole in the ground by queer machinery that they never saw before than they are when sanitary inspectors, either Americans or Filipinos, come around to inspect their houses in spite of their lugubrous protests. One of the greatest menaces to health in the islands always has been poor water. In days gone by it killed untold millions through dysentery, cholera and other diseases. All foreigners and a few careful Filipinos always have drunk boiled or distilled water. The first lesson a rookie in the Philippines has to learn is not to drink water out of the tap. If he is on a hike he must spurn all inviting little brooks and quench his thirst on cocoanut milk.

Your Filipino takes no such precautions. He never has and probably never will. So it was up to a paternal government to give the Filipinos good potable water. Investigations prior to 1905 showed that nearly 10 per cent of the total deaths were due to intestinal diseases. Cholera frequently was epidemic. It was evident that any attempt to improve living conditions in the islands must provide for pure drinking water and the artesian well will fill the bill.

SPRINGTIME.

BY THE REV. W. V. HARTER, ENTERPRISE, O.

Springtime is the happiest of all the year,
For blooming flowers we see and song birds hear;
When the children get out to play their games
And to rehearse each other's famous nick-names.

You can also see them coming from many gates
With fishing poles and cans of baits;
They're hunting the creek, a place to fish,
And as I see them going I have the same wish.

I am so glad that spring has arrived,
For in my lighter weight clothing I expect to dive;
Discarding overcoat and clumsy over-shoes,
And everything else that gives a fellow the blues.

Yes, I am so glad when spring arrives,
When we can have onions, lettuce and rhubarb pies;
Beets, pears, and roasting ears, my!
I've been waiting so long it makes me sigh.

We must have the winter 'tis all very true—
If it doesn't suit me perhaps it just suits you;
But I am mighty glad to see her go mighty quick,
For I am getting anxious for my young fried chick.

"It is of course getting a little late for such poems," the Rev. Harter writes the magazine he submitted the above verses to, whose editor relays it to us, "but I have just hesitated to send this in thinking that perhaps it was of no value." As though timeliness made any difference! We'll run a snowstorm poem in July if it were—well, good enough is the word.

More timely, but no scintilla less poetical is the following welcome, to one trying to grab a day off, poem from the esteemed Orange "Advertiser," the title being "June Brides":

> The prettiest time in Orange
> Is in the month of June,
> When the church is always ready
> To receive the bride and groom.
> This is the good old lucky time,
> When the sea is calm and deep,
> And the bride beneath the June vine
> May never need to weep.
> The happy bride of this month
> Is like the rose in June,
> And she thinks it is fashionable to marry
> When the sun is at high noon.
> The bride chooses lovely June,
> When the birds are sweetly singing,
> And the flowers are in full bloom.
> For the wedding bells are ringing.
> Flowers are always sweet in Orange,
> Though they sometimes seem to hide;
> But never in this glorious month,
> For they are blooming for the bride.

THE DIARY OF OUR OWN SAMUEL PEPYS.

June 18.—Up very betimes and having to destroy some verses I had wrought upon the hot weather, for that it did grow cool in the night. Ever it seemeth to be my fortune, when I do make rhymes upon the weather for it to change, rendering the lines futile and of none effect. To the tennis-court and played with no great exertion, yet with success. Thence home to dinner, of a stew of lamb, very fine, and far more to my liking than roast veal or swordfish. Read this night a tayle of Charley Van Loan's, called "Starlight and Moonshine," very good and the best, methought, he ever hath done, both in the writing and the matter of it. Only sometimes I think a tayle like that to be wrong in the effect it may have, sithen there be so many that do seek excuses to give no alms and never to do an unbusiness-like action or a careless deed, lest they be mulcted and some may cry, Stung! or Sucker! Even as I deemed Mr. Galsworthy's play "The Pigeon" to have an ill effect upon many that saw it, who would say, What use in the world is kindness?

19.—To my office early and saw the great new ship Imperator come into port, and the largest boat ever I saw, or any one else, for the matter of that. Cometh J. Fyne the poet to see me and tells me none will publish his verses done from the Italian, which is too bad, meseems. Laboured all the afternoon with great dispatch and then to the boat to go by water to Mistress Inez's where I have not been since September.

"Noticing your remarks—over some one's shoulder—in Wednesday's collum," writes James Montgomery Flagg, "I rise with a certain amount (1-10 of 1 per cent?) of dignity to ask wotinell can one rhyme with 'forty' if not 'naughty'?". Fie, James, and a sixth of a dozen tuts! "Sporty," "del Norte," "shorty"—Are you spoofing us?

I need say but very little they will know that the work I have done in the past, was as good as could be expected. Very often far better than expected. They will know that the materials I have used, was at all times the best. The time and care I have taken to execute each individual piece of work, was such as to insure the same to be of the highest artistic order and at the same time very durable. It is therefore a common occurance at my office for a patient for whom I have made some dental work years ago, to come to my office with some one saying, Doctor! Do you remember me? It's about seven years ago that you made this bridge (pointing to some dental work in her mouth for me). I am very pleased with it, it never bothered me, and it is as good as new. You see, I have brought a friend of mine, Mrs. so and so, she needs some dental work. I hope you will satisfy her the same as you satisfied me.

My prices will be found at all times reasonable, while the work speaks for itself. (Palate work?)

Election of Upper-Crusters

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

Millionaires, kings, lords, dukes and all the haity-toity folk, aristocrats in London, plutocrats in New York, and bearers of peacock feathers in China, are all elected by popular vote, the same as sheriffs, aldermen and town clerks in Nebraska.

Whenever you find an upper-tendom that lords it over the lower orders, it is there by the will and choice of the people.

The rich man in Chicago lives in a house that is too big for him, collects rare paintings, sails in a yacht, has his cellar full of champagne, and owns seven automobiles, for no other reason than that all of us small fry expect him to; we would not understand him if he did not, and we would do the same in his place. They will have kings and other aristocratic tidbits in Germany, lords and ladies in England, and the smart set in the United States just as long as the most of the common people would give their eyes to belong.

You cannot cure the aristocracy microbe by abolishing aristocrats; you can only kill it by eradicating it from the popular mind.

Aristocrats can't help themselves. They are the flower of vulgarity. The roots are in the crowd.

If we all did not envy and secretly admire Mrs. Hytone when she lands from Europe with twenty-five trunks, four maids, two dogs anda quarts of diamonds, she would not so land. She will never be modest until we become modest. Which the same is a long way off.

An Irishman, with one jaw much swollen from a tooth that he wished to have pulled entered the office of a Washington dentist.

When the suffering Celt was put into the chair and saw the gleaming forceps approaching his face he positively refused to open his mouth. Being a man of resource, the dentist quietly instructed his assistant to push a pin into the patient's leg, so that when the Irishman opened his mouth to yell the dentist could get at the refractory molar.

When all was over the dentist smilingly asked:

"It didn't hurt as much as you expected, did it?"

"Well, no," reluctantly admitted the patient, "but," he added, as he ran his hand over the place into which the assistant had inserted the pin, "little did I think them roots wint that far down!"—Success Magazine.

For a long time the friendly relations between two little girls whose families are next door neighbors in Washington were unbroken by any untoward circumstances. Finally, however, there came a "falling out," and Louise hastened to communicate to the parents of her erstwhile friend, Blanche, certain details of the distressing occurence.

When next the two children met severe recriminations were exchanged. Said Blanche:

"You're just as mean and hateful as you can be—telling my father and mother that I bit you. You ought to be ashamed of yourself."

"You ought to be ashamed to bite me!" retorted Louise.

"Suppose I did," came vehemently from Blanche. "You bite, too, don't you?"

Whereupon the other showed the greatest indignation. "Let me tell you one thing," she added; "if I do bite, I never bite any one outside my own family."—Lippincott's.

COUNCILMAN THOMSON RAPS CAPT. DONALDSON

Blames County Construction Chief for Delay on Butler and Highland Sewer

That Captain T. J. Donaldson, the county chief of construction, has refused to obey the instructions of the board of county comissioners with reference to building the Butler street and Highland avenue sewers, was the assertion made to a Journal reporter Tuesday by Councilman Albert Thomson.

The councilman was on the point of leaving the city hall in company with County Commissioners Turman and Winn for an inspection of the sewer situation, and what he said was not heard by them.

"The county made an agreement with the city to build the sewers, trunk size, from the present outfalls to Tenth street, that being the section where the most people live and where the nuisance is therefore greatest," said he.

"Captain Donaldson was ordered last March to begin work. He started a few days ago. But instead of building from Tenth street south, where the sewer is needed most, he is building the other way. How he can fail to carry out the instructions of the board is more than I can understand, but it seems that he works when he gets ready and where he gets ready.

"I have an idea that he is trying to put the public works committee of the county board in a hole. Being somewhat of a politician himself, and having at one time had quite a political influence, Captain Donaldson is not politically in sympathy with the present public works committee.

"The sewer situation in the Fourth ward is a disgrace to a civilized community. There, through the heart of one of the most populous and one of the finest residence sections of the city, runs an open sewer. At certain times the stench almost drives the people from their homes."

WITH CARTOONIST BREWERTON AT THE FORSYTH

IN THE LOCAL PLAYHOUSES

Criticisms of theatrical performances at the local theaters are written by members of The Journal staff. All other matter appearing in this column is furnished by the theater managements."

FORSYTH—Vaudeville.
GRAND—"Quo Vadis," in pictures.
BIJOU—Tabloid Musical Comedy.

Fro mfancy diving to Jap acrobatic stunts, this week's bill at the Forsyth is full of unusual and interestin stunts, including several singing and dancing acts which are slightly above par as vaudeville numbers.

The program is headed by Miss Gertrude Vanderbilt and George Moore. Miss Vanderbilt is an old favorite with Atlanta theatergoers, and proved to Monday night's large audience that she has lost none of the grace and winsomeness with which she has charmed local pleasure-seekers many times before.

A good swimming and fancy diving act never fails to score with Atlanta folk, and that of "Ideal" ranks with the best. Several difficult feats a la Annette Kellerman, together with stunts such as diving submarine, as it were, brought down the house.

Other clever numbers are the Four Hayamas, Japanese acrobats; a farce entitled "A Midnight Marriage;" the Musical Cuttys, composed of three attractive girls and a trio of men, all of whom displayed considerable skill with various instruments; and Miss Minnie Allen, an excellent singing comedienne.

"Doc" O'Neil proved a good laugh-producer.

There is the same interest in "Quo Vadis" at the Grand that was in evidence all last week. The might and the value of the most sensational photo-play has attracted attention all over Atlanta, and all classes of citizens have been found in the gatherings.

The pictures were seen last week by more than 25,00 people, and from the commencement of this week there is every indication that these figures surely will be eclipsed. At the matinee and night performances on Monday there were crowds that had seen the production of the Cines people before, but they had returned and brought new comers, who grew just as enthusiastic as those who had already enjoyed the treat.

"Quo Vadis" is the greatest classic motion picture that ever has been produced. Eighteen months were spent by a big company in making the 10,000 feet of film in Rome and the neighboring country. Actual scenes of the historic reign of Nero have been taken, and the wonderful scenes in the arena while lions are devouring the prisoners of Nero, while gladiators combat, and while chariots race madly for the entertainment of the terrible man, produce thrills that no book or melodramatic play could possibly near.

The actors playing the principal roles are clever people. "Quo Vadis" is the wonderful sensation of present theatrical history. The pictures will be produced at matinee and night performances all the rest of the week at the Grand, giving Atlanta the credit of being the only city outside of New York, Chicago and Philadelphia that has had "Quo Vadis" for more than one week.

A bunch of pretty girls, a trio of funny comedians, clever vaudeville stunts, good scenic effects, attractive costumes, tuneful musical numbers and laughable lines and situations, are some of the features of this week's musical comedy tabloid, "The Merry Whirl," which promises to be one of the most delightful entertainments of the summer season at the Bijou. The big company of twenty-five people is headed by Miss Majodie Lake, the lady with the phenomenal baritone voice; Lew Miller and Harry Loader, German dialect comedians, and Sol H. Carter, the funny little Hebrew comedian—all assisted by a bevy of pretty girls making up the well drilled chorus.

"The Merry Whirl" is one of the few musical shows that has a plot, telling a good story concerning the experiences of two Germans, who, while on a sightseeing tour of Paris, get into all sorts of trouble. The fun is kept going throughout the two acts, and between times popular musical numbers, dances and specialties are introduced, and the performance move with a dash and vim that makes a lively and pleasing show.

During the week there will be matinees every afternoon, and night performances at 7:30 and 9 o'clock.

RENEWED BULL SUPPORT CAUSED RISE IN COTTON

Market in New York Closed 1 Point Off to 3 Points Up From Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, June 24.—Cotton opened steady at unchanged prices to an advance of 2 points and sold about 4 to 7 points net higher during the early trading. Cables were just about as due and the weather map was considered preserved. Yesterday's early overnight bulge seemed ing for a reaction on scattering complaints that rain was needed in the Atlantic states, so as to the showing of the weekly weather report gave the market a steady undertone. Even those were moderate sellers of new crop positions here but there was no aggressive selling and prices worked within a point or two of the basis during the early trading.

Prices gradually eased off under continued realizing with the market about net unchanged to 2 points higher at midday.

Cotton closed steady at midday uplands, 12.30; do. gulf, 12.55. Sales, 500.

The private weekly report of the weather bureau was considered favorable but prices remained steady during the early afternoon, with the market about not unchanged to 3 points higher at 1 p. m.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 24.—Cotton futures opened steady at an advance of 1 to 2 points on good cables. The weather map showed scattered showers over the belt.

Less favorable weather reports from Georgia stimulated buying. These reports made mention of local and irregular rainfall and a poor crop. Offerings were slender in the early trading and the west of the first half hour of business prices were 5 points over the close of yesterday.

The market was quiet throughout the morning session but its tone was very steady. At midday there were offerings in limited size at a trifling demand served to hold prices up in the face of reports of earlier showers on record in important sections of Texas and of a much better filling out in central Mississippi. At the highest of the morning prices were 6 to 8 points. Liquidation of long cotton checked the rise and prices eased off somewhat to 4 to 6 points over the final figures of yesterday.

Saving and Investing

THE GOOD SALESMAN'S FUNCTION.

BY JOHN M. OSKISON

It was the head of a highclass bond house talking to his selling force. He said:

"It is the first duty of a bond salesman to look after the protection given to the investor. A salesman who will investigate the security given an investor by the class of bonds he has for sale, and who will not look at the profit he is making until he has satisfied himself that the investor is getting a square deal, will be successful in the business and will succeed after others have failed.

"It is the small amount of business a salesman does so much as the kind which distinguishes the good salesman from the bad. A good salesman will always stick to the best and be conservative."

Substitute, in this statement, the word stock for the word bond, and remember that everything from a State's or United States government bond to a stock in a coal mine, or the wildest wildcat mine, is referred to as a "security," and you will have a mighty good method of testing the worth of the thing offered you, whether it be a "bond" or "stock," mortgage, or whatever it is.

Ask a seemingly impertinent question when a salesman comes to you. Ask him how much he's getting out of selling the thing he offers. Then, if he gives you a figure, send him away and then set out to find out whether or not he lied to you. Write to the company issuing the securities, as well as to the dealer who sent the salesman around to you.

A big commission to the salesman means a bad security—dead sure. You can find out that 5 or 10 per cent of what you are asked to pay will go to the salesman for his work. Remember that there are a number of others to pay, and if the man who talks to you gets a big slice, the others will also get fancy commissions. In the end, therefore, only a small fraction of the money you pay will get to the business. And it is only out of the use of money actually put into the business (whatever it is that issues the security) that any reward to you in the shape of interest or dividends can come.

Learn to avoid the salesman who does not talk first of all about the safety of the investment he offers. And don't take mere statements as proofs—ask for financial histories, balance sheets, earnings, etc. And if you can't read them intelligently (and, let me assure you, it is no proof of stupidity if you can't), take them to some one who can.

THE JOURNAL Wants are resultful in many ways.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET WAS ACTIVE AND STRONG

Union Pacific, Reading, Steel, Canadian Pacific, Copper and Northern Pacific Led

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, June 24.—A strong tone pervaded the market at the beginning of business today. Demand was active. Much of the buying of stocks was by floor traders who have been putting out short lines at every opportunity but there was some absorption by longs. Business generally was the first hour expired and some shares relapsed half a point.

Sentiment was more cheerful, although trading related after the first hour's upward rush. The more confident atmosphere of the market was reflected in increased long operations.

Crop reports and weather forecasts seemed to be the main influence in lifting the market. Private advices indicated fast nervousness at the approach of settlement had diminished.

Outside interest revived somewhat as prices climbed but after the first hour interest practically buyers began to hesitate and there was no renewal of the first hour's spurt, which caused a reaction of half a point or more.

Bonds steady.

When the realizing stopped and buying orders appeared in large quantities, there was little or nor a great deal of stock available at the lower levels and prices began to mend.

Included in the early buying in the morning but grains of a point or over were quite general. Selling of the Pennsylvania-Chesapeake stocks revived talk of unfavorable trade conditions.

Fluctuations were narrower with the progress of the day and the market was more sensitive to the movements in special issues. Canadian and Ohio ran off from 57½ to 54¾, causing an easier tendency elsewhere.

Concerted buying of various parts of the list started prices upwards at a lively rate again. Union Pacific was the leader, rising 2 points to a level 2 points beyond yesterday's close had an immediately effect on the general list, in which speculative interests trade in day by day became the most active strength.

Closed strong.

LONDON STOCKS

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, June 24.—Settlement in the mining section of the exchange today was marked by cheerful conditions. There was less anxiety than usual over the outcome of the general settlement tomorrow. The improvement was attributed to the rally here yesterday and the more cheerful outlook in Paris. Prices advanced on more confident buying by professionals. Closed firm.

American securities advanced from ¼ to 2 points during the session, under the lead of Canadian Pacific. Good New York and continental buying orders were executed later and prices continued to advance. Closed firm.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Ellis, Jr., will give a buffet supper Friday evening at their home on Fifteenth street, in compliment to Miss Eloise Oliver and Mr. Frampton Ellis, whose marriage will take place on June 30.

To Miss Francis

Miss Frances Connally will be hostess at a bridge party Thursday morning at the Piedmont club in compliment to Miss Martha Francis, a bride-elect of the week.

Miss Connally's guests will include twelve friends.

Mrs. Pardee Entertains

Mrs. Don Pardee entertained with a "one dream" tea this afternoon at the Piedmont club in compliment to Miss Marjorie Brown and her guest, Miss Diane Tate, of New York.

The party included twenty-four young people.

Miss Muse's Bowling Party

Miss Alice Muse will be hostess at a bowling party this evening at the East Lake Country club.

The occasion will be informal and very pleasant, the guests to include a number of the younger contingent.

Miss Jones' Five o'Clock Tea

Miss Helen Jones was hostess at tea Tuesday afternoon at her home in Inman Park in compliment to Miss Margaret Buckner, of Roanoke, Va.

The reception hall where the guests were received was adorned with many lovely Paul Neyron roses and festoons of southern smilax continued the color scheme of pink and green.

The veranda was converted into an open air garden with many handsome growing plants, and punch was served there during the afternoon by Miss Margaret McCarty and Miss Eleanor Macy.

Miss Jones wore a lovely gown of white charmuese satin, the corsage veiled in ciel blue chiffon.

Miss Buckner's gown of pink charmeuse was fashioned with panniers of embroidered chiffon and lace.

Mrs. Adam Jones, who assisted in the entertainment of the guests, was costumed in white lingerie effectively panelled with lace and combined with pink satin.

Assisting Miss Jones and Miss Buckner in receiving were Miss Clifford West, Miss Margaret Northen, Miss Aurelia Speer, Miss Annie Laurie Robinson, Miss Helen Thorn, Miss Pearl Willinson, of San Antonio, Tex.; Miss Nellie Kiser Stewart, Miss Mignon McCarty, Miss Annie Laurie Robinson and Mrs. Henry Porter.

A large number of guests, including a number of young men, called between the hours of 5 and 7.

Miss Pirkle Entertains

Miss Inez Pirkle gave a moonlight picnic at Grant park on Monday evening in honor of Miss Martha White, of Thomasville, and Miss Janie Stewart, of Dawson, who are guests of Miss Birdie Mae Dunbar.

The chaperons for the occasion were Mrs. Dunbar and Mrs. Holloway.

A bountiful supper was served in the pavilion, after which dancing and rowing was enjoyed.

Those present were Miss Birdie Mae Dunbar, Miss Davis, Miss Ordray Thayer, Miss Kimbrough, Miss Upchurch, Miss Upshaw, Miss Rauschenburg, Miss Janie Stewart, Miss Martha White, Miss Sutton, Miss Daisy Lou Dennis, Mr. Raymond Paul Goff, Mr. Edward C. Levine, Mr. Pharr Glower, Mr. Sayle, Mr. Charles William Dillingham, Mr. Leconte, Mr. "Skeeziks" Crouch, Mr. Hancock, Mr. Chambers, Mr. Claude Daley, Mr. John Thurston, Mr. Theo Benning and Mr. Jackson.

Garden Party at Mrs. Slaton's

The Atlanta chapter, D. A. R., will give a lawn party on Wednesday afternoon from 5 to 7 at the country home of Mrs. John M. Slaton on Peachtree road. A delightful program has been arranged, the singers to be on the terrace porch, with the English home in the background. Mrs. Carthew-Yorston, Miss Mary Lovelace and Mr. Wilfred Waters will make the afternoon one of rare pleasure.

The hostess will be assisted in receiving by her mother, Mrs. W. D. Grant; Mrs. John Grant, Miss Mattie Slaton and the officers of the chapter.

The social side of the occasion will be delightful, and charming women from all over the city other than members of the chapter, have signified their interest.

The public is cordially invited to be present. An admission fee of 50 cents will be charged, the proceeds to be used for the benefit of the chapter house. It is hoped that all the members of the patriotic chapters will be present, and a special invitation is extended to the members of the general assembly of Georgia who will be in Atlanta Wednesday.

The convenient location of Mr. and Mrs. Slaton's country home will induce many to attend. Buckhead cars pass the door and run every ten minutes.

Those out for a shady road for a drive or auto spin will enjoy stopping for a cooling beverage or to hear the beautiful music planned for the occasion. Wurm's orchestra will play throughout the afternoon.

Interesting Lecture

An interesting event of Tuesday evening will be the lecture to be given at the First Methodist church by Mrs. Mary Harris Armor on "A Saloonless Nation in 1920 and Why."

A large attendance is expected and the occasion will be an intersting one.

A FORMER GEORGIAN-

MRS. JOSEPH C. GUILD, OF CHATTANOOGA.
Mrs. Guild was formerly Miss Sarah Nicholls, a belle of Savannah.

MR. AND MRS. FELDER'S DINNER TO PLAYERS' CLUB

A brilliant event of Monday evening, and the initial large entertainment of the week, was the buffet supper given at the Piedmont club by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Felder in compliment to the Players' club.

The attractive club house presented a beautiful appearance. The verandahs were banked with greenery and handsome growing plants, and lit with softly shaded lights which threw a lovely radiance over the brilliant assemblage of guests.

Supper was served from a long table on the terrace which was banked with flowers.

In the center a tall vase held quantities of exquisitely colored pink gladioli which was sent to Mrs. Felder by the members of the club, and at each of the table mounds of sweet peas in varying shades of lavender were used with artistic effect.

SOCIETY PLAY.

At the close of the supper a charming surprise was given the hostess, real stage footlights sprang up at the edge of the terrace, and a number of the well known members of the club gave a rendition of "Neurasthenia," the clever society playlet by Francis Crowninshield.

The members of the cast included Miss Hildreth Burton Smith, Mrs. W. C. Jarnagin, Mrs. Ransom Wright, Mrs. Thaddeus E. Horton, Mrs. Frank Owens, Mrs. Ida Howell Cramer, Mr. Tom Donaldson, Mr. Frank Taylor, Mr. Wallace Draper and Mr. Claude Weiler.

The parts were all ably rendered and offered scope for splendid character impersonation.

By clever adaptation the London setting of the play was changed to a local one, and as the play progressed references to the Race's Ferry road, Ansley Park, and Peachtree street and accompanying local "hits" elicited ripples of amusement and hearty applause from the audience whose enthusiasm increased as the play approached its climax.

A French song was charmingly rendered by Mrs. Ransom Wright, and Mrs. Jarnagin's lovely voice was heard in the beginning of the play as she came down the stone steps singing a quaint ballad.

RECEIVING PARTY.

Mrs. Felder was assisted in receiving by Mrs. John Marshall Slaton and Mrs. Frank Ellis.

Mrs. Felder was costumed in straw colored embroidered chiffon draped over satin of a deeper hue, a wide sash o. French blue giving a lovely touch of color, her hat was a close fitting model of straw ornamented with blue plumes, and she wore a corsage bouquet of gardenias.

Mrs. Slaton wore a gown of corn colored chiffon draped over cloth of gold, and Mrs. Ellis' imported gown was of draped white charmeuse, the corsage embroidered with pearls.

A distinguished guest of the evening was Mrs. Corra Harris, of Nashville, who received a cordial welcome from her many friends and admirers.

Mr. and Mrs. Felder's guests included besides the members the patrons and patronesses of the club and over 200 guests enjoyed the hospitality of the occasion.

To Mrs. Myers

Mrs. J. E. McGaughey will entertain at tea Friday afternoon in compliment to Mrs. T. E. Myers, a recent bride, who was formerly Miss Kathleen Braswell, of Fitzgerald.

Mrs. McGaughey will be assisted by Miss Ruth Chapman, Miss Nellie England, Miss Kate Chapman, Miss Bessie Bumsted, Mrs. Guy Corley, Mrs. Walter Broaden, Mrs. H. K. Chapman, Mrs. Marwyn Conway. Mrs. Hattie Sanders and Mrs. Robert H. Bell.

WEDDINGS

Clardy-Carlisle

The wedding of Miss Katherine Guerry Carlisle and Mr. Luther Broadus Clardy, of Laurens, S. C., took place Tuesday morning at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Felix W. Carlisle, on North Boulevard. Dr. Purser officiating.

On account of the illness of the bride's mother the wedding was a very quiet one, the ceremony being performed in the presence of the immediate family and intimate riends.

The bride wore a traveling gown of blue cloth and worn with this was a smart tailored hat to match, and her flowers were lilies of the valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Clardy will make their home in Laurens, S. C.

Floyd-Johnson

A beautiful wedding of much interest to many friends was that of Miss Ollie Johnson and Mr. Robert Floyd, which occurred at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Johnson, in Clarkston, on Wednesday, June 11.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles Johnson, of Atlanta.

The house was beautifully decorated with smilax and jasmines, the color scheme being white and green.

The bridal party entered to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Kate Jolly, and "Hearts and Flowers" was played during the ceremony.

The bridesmaids were Misses Vera and Manon Estes, Miss Mary Johnson and Miss May Floyd.

The groomsmen were Mr. Roy Floyd and Mr. Ottis Gresham. The best man was Mr. Charlie Floyd, brother of the groom.

Mrs. Charlie Floyd was matron of honor. She wore a lovely gown of white voile trimmed with shadow lace and touches of blue satin.

The flower girls were little Misses Marcelle Johnson and Margaret Chestnut. They carried baskets of daisies.

The bride's gown was of white satin draped with bordered chiffon which was caught up with lilies of the valley. Her bouquet was bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

A reception followed the ceremony.

Miss Ruby Hunt, of Chattanooga, and Miss Hazel Sutton assisted in receiving.

A color scheme of pink and white was carried out.

Punch was served in the hall by Misses Ruby and Grace Chestnut. They wore lovely lingerie dresses.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Chestnut, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Cowan, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Floyd, Mrs. C. J. Eberhart, Miss Myrtle Butler, all of Atlanta; Miss Ruby Hunt of Chattanooga, Tenn.; Miss Mary Johnson and Mr. Dudley Johnson, of Stone Mountain; Mr. Roy Floyd, Mr. Carl Warren, Mr. Ottis Gresham and Miss May Floyd, of Redan.

Stillman-Porter

A quiet event of the morning was the wedding of Miss Margaret Porter and Dr. Lowe Stillman, which took place at 10 o'clock at the residence of Dr. Dunbar Ogden, who officiated.

The ceremony was witnessed by the immediate families of the bride and groom and a few intimate friends.

The bride wore her going-away gown of dark blue cloth with hat to match and she wore a corsage bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

Dr. and Mrs. Stillman left during the morning for the east, and upon their return will be at home at 285 East Fourth street.

To Mrs. Bethune

Mrs. George Royal Bethune, of Rome, who is visiting her mother, Mrs. E. M. Kirk, was the guest of honor at the bridge party with which Mrs. T. C. Mell entertained this afternoon.

She will be complimented with a number of parties this week. Mrs. S. J. Massenburg will give a bridge party Wednesday afternoon, Miss Ida May Osborne will entertain on Thursday. Miss Willie Asher Friday morning and Mrs. E. R. Glenn will give a tea Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Dan Sage will entertain at bridge Saturday afternoon, and next week Miss Laurie Jones and Miss Bessie Small will entertain.

LADIES' AID SOCIETY

The Ladies' Aid society of Asbury Methodist church will have an ice cream festival at the Davis street school park Tuesday evening, 7 o'clock, June 24. Benefit Asbury Methodist church purposes. The public is cordially invited.

Johnston-Pevey

The marriage of Miss Kate Johnston and Mr. Lauren N. Pevey, of Savannah, will take place at the home of the bride's mother, in Inman Park, on Saturday evening, June 28.

Only the immediate families will be present at the ceremony, which will take place at 8:30 o'clock.

What Anne Ritten-house Says

There is a growing fashion for long sleeves, some tight, some loose, made of lace or net, placed in afternoon and evening gowns.

When one speaks of the latter one does not mean costly ball gowns or handsome theater frocks or ornate dinner costumes, but all those many attractive, interesting frocks that serve for summer evenings, whether the occasion is formal or simple.

When long sleeves first came into fashion it was difficult to make Americans adopt them. They had always worn elbow sleeves and shorter ones, even on the street and for all manner of coat suits and one-piece frocks. They did not like the idea of covering the arms in house gowns especially, and they retained the elbow sleeve for six months before they finally gave in and made long sleeves the fashion.

Of these long sleeves there were many varieties, and America came to accept those that were wrinkled and loose, rather than those that were tight and plain. The small armhole came back to its own after three seasons of armholeless waists, and women found it is difficult to adjust sleeves in it as they had found it difficult to make the kimono sleeve during the first six months of its beginning.

Next came the lowered armhole instead of the regulation one, and this gave a chance for a full sleeve that was gathered below the shoulder and at the wrist. The next step was the most difficult sleeve indeed which, so far no one but the experts know how to make. It is cut in one with the bodice, appears to have an armhole that drops almost to the waist, and then wrinkles in loose folds to the wrist, where it is finished with a turnover cuff of thin muslin or a pleating of lace.

Long Sleeves of Lace.

Early in the spring there came about a fashion for separate sleeves, which never had much of a following when they were of opaque material, but the newer idea of making the transparent sleeves reach from shoulder to wrist is cordially approved. These sleeves are put into high-waisted skirts of heavier material. They are not in striking contrast to a waist of batiste or silk.

The laxity allowed in having short-waisted blouses of tulle or lace or net go into high-waisted skirts of heavier material gives one a good chance to try out these long diaphanous sleeves for the summer and autumn.

There are many women who will complain that elbow sleeves are cooler; probably they are, but there are vast numbers of women who have ugly arms, and especially so from elbow to wrist. No matter what the fashion these women should cover them up, and the use of the lace sleeve is an easy way out of the problem. Gloves are more and more tabooed in all formal life and the transparent sleeve is a charming substitute.

It is really not any hotter than one that is cut off to the elbow; one only imagines it is so, but experiment proves otherwise. It is not necessary to make these sleeves thick by gathering them too closely. They should hang away from the arm in long free folds, although the so-called mousquetaire glove is in the height of fashion.

Either of these styles can be used with admirable effect on afternoon and evening gowns, but if one wishes to be really cool, or give the appearance of it, then the sleeve that is made from one long strip of lace, scalloped on both egdes and held together only at the shoulders and wrists, is a charming fancy of the moment.

Sleeves of Black Tulle.

One of the innovations made in house gowns of black satin is to have long sleeves of black tulle. The material is drawn around the arm and gathered down the length of the back arm into two wide ruffles that stand for three or four inches away from the arm without any seeming arrangement.

It is one of the new ideas, you know, not to put any touch of white on a black evening gown, but keep the sleeves as well as the folds of tulle across the decolletage. With the usual addition of a string of white pearls—more or less real—the effect is quite distinguished.

The Evening Story

THE CURE

(Copyright, 1913, by W. Werner.)

Mrs. Bender had a heart. She could feel it thumping and fluttering and squirming night and day. It was a very busy heart, and it was wearing her out. Moreover, it was expensive; it required a doctor and a pharmacist. It also required her family to be in constant attendance upon her, for there was no knowing at what hour of the day or night it might decide to stop working.

Celia Would Not Even Look at Him.

Mrs. Bender lived in constant terror of such a happening. She was a plump woman, with red cheeks and black eyes. She looked healthy, but she was convinced that she was not. She had inherited her heart from her grandmother, who had died of hers at the age of seventy-something, and from her mother, who was still suffering.

It had taken a great deal of courage for Joseph Bender to marry her, heart and all, and it had taken even more patience than courage to live with her after he had got her. One daughter had come to them, and she had no heart at all. She took after her father and was fair and pale and placid. At 22, Celia was a self-possessed young woman who could sweep, iron, scrub and wash windows with graceful facility. She had no heart to interfere with her activities.

"Celia has no sympathy with me," Mrs. Bender sighed to her friend, Mrs. Cook, who had something of a heart herself. "She is just like her father. Now Joseph never has the least conception of the way I suffer with my heart, if it were not for you and Dr. Goff, Fanny, I don't know what I'd do. It's so comforting to have somebody to talk to. Of course, you know as well as I do that I'm getting worse each day and liable to drop off at any time, just the way poor, dear grandma did. Why, just last night, Fanny, I didn't know whether I'd ever live to see morning light. I felt it coming on directly after supper. We had lobster salad for supper and strawberries—the first strawberries we've had this season. Thirty-five cents a basket, too. I didn't eat as heartily as usual, but about 12 I was awakened from a horrible nightmare. My heart was going like mad. I sat up in bed and screamed for Celia. I thought she would never come. As for Joseph—it was almost impossible to awaken him. But when Dr. Goff came he understood how serious my case was. He's perfectly lovely and very experienced for a young man, and his medicine is so effective. It isn't disagreeable to take, either. He said: 'My dear lady, I can sympathize with you. I'm suffering from heart trouble myself!' That was the first I'd ever dreamed of such a thing. The poor, dear boy! I patted his hand—I was feeling better then—but Celia threw up her nose in that way she has. Sometimes, Fanny, I think Celia has no more heart than a stone."

"You'll find she has some time," Mrs. Cook replied. "She'll be falling in love with somebody, and when Celia falls in love—well!"

Mrs. Bender looked alarmed. "I shan't let Celia marry, Fanny," she said. "What did God send me a daughter for but to take care of me? Celia knows her duty. She doesn't care for young men. I've brought her up to be sensible, I hope. And, then, there's my heart hanging over her. She may inherit it. I asked Dr. Goff if he thought she showed any signs of heart trouble. He said instantly that she did not. 'I've been watching her for that very thing,' he said. So, you see, he has his suspicions! I shouldn't wonder. Well, I must go home. Celia will likely have supper on the table. I haven't lifted my hand today. I couldn't. It was just all I could do to get over here."

With a careful step Mrs. Bender walked home. As she neared the house she saw a young man carrying a doctor's case slip down the steps, jump into a smart litle runabout moored to the curbing and dash away. He did not see her, and yet she was in plain sight. She found Celia very busy about the kitchen stove and unusually flushed from its heat.

"What was Dr Goff doing here in my absence?" she demanded.

Celia tried to laugh. "Why, mamma, he didn't know you were absent until he found out that you were. He wanted to see—" She paused. "He asked how you were," she ended.

"You could have phoned me. I was just over to Fanny Cook's."

"I guess he thought it wasn't necessary to see you. I told him you were all right."

"All right!" cried Mrs. Bender angrily. "How do you know I'm all right? Do you carry my heart? No, you haven't even one of your own."

"I—I'm beginning to think I have," faltered Celia. She hurried into the dining room with a plate of cake and got awa from her mother's eyes.

It was fully ten days before Mrs. Bender had another attack, and that was soon after dinner. There had been chicken potpie for dinner, with ice wheels of his frisky little runabout. He ran into the house. He opened his medicine case and prepared a grayish, sweet tasting powder which he bade Celia give her mother. Mrs. Bender swallowed the powder at a gulp and felt better. The young doctor sat down and smiled at her. He tried also to smile at Celia. But Celia would not even look at him. Her nose was at its highest and her gray eyes sparkled.

"There!" said Dr. Goff, in his pleasant voice. "I'm sure you feel better, eh, Mrs. Bender? That powder has begun to get busy. Your color is coming back nicely. And your pulse—" He picked up her wrist and drew forth his watch —"is again normal."

"My heart does feel better," sighed Mrs. Bender. "I felt I was slipping away, doctor, just as you came. I was going to have Celia call her father. And I'd never do that save as a last resort, for Joseph is so unsympathetic."

The doctor sighed in sympathy and looked at Celia, who promptly turned her back on him.

"I've had eleven doctors," went on Mrs. Bender, "and they've all doctored me for heart trouble without doing me one mite of good. You're the only one that has even helped me. I am very, very grateful."

The doctor bit his lip. "I believe I'll leave you more of those powders," he said.

With a quick step Celia came forward. Her chin was up, her cheeks scarlet, her eyes stern. "If you do leave those powders," her voice was cold, "you'll tell my mother what they are and why you are giving them to her. If you don't, you know what I'll do. I hate a hypocrite, Dr. Goff. We've had too many of them in this house. And you'll prove yourself another unless you tell the truth now."

Dr. Goff put his hand to his brow. He was very pale, indeed. He looked helplessly at Mrs. Bender, at his medicine case and then at Celia. "Rather than that you should think me anything but what I would have you," he said, gently, "I will tell the truth, which I would have done long ago but for circumstances, as you know. No man is any stronger than his heart. Mrs. Bender, what I have been giving you is pepsin. What ails you is indigestion. Your heart is as sound as—as Celia's."

Mrs. Bender gave a gasp and sprang out of her chair. But Celia put a restraining arm about her.

"They've all lied to you, mamma," she said. "Dr. Goff is telling you the truth. Your heart is perfectly sound. It is only indigestion ails you. You are quite well. There is no danger of your dying at all. I'm so glad, mamma—so happy, so relieved."

Celia bent her head upon her mother's shoulder and sobbed.

Mrs. Bender could not speak. She was overcome, amazed. She felt insulted, indignant, befooled. Indigestion, indeed! A mere vulgar ailment which even a scrubwoman could have from over-eating! Her heart had become her hobby. How was she going to live without it? She pushed Celia off her shoulder. She glared angrily at Dr. Goff.

"I wouldn't have been more surprised," she managed at last to say, "if you had asked for Celia's hand in marriage."

Dr. Goff started forward eagerly.

"That's just what I'm going—what I want to do," he said. "Celia said if I'd tell and be square she'd have me, if you were willing. Oh! if you but knew what I've been through. Mrs. Bender, it's an awful thing to be forced into a game of this kind. The first time I came I knew, but you were so sure, and there was the word of all those other eleven doctors, older and wiser than I. And then I saw Celia and—well, I've carried her around in my heart ever since. I was tempted. I thought if I told you you'd dismiss me, and Celia— And it was all so harmless. Then the other day, after the lobster supper, Celia suspected, and made me tell. You see where I was. By George, it's been a tough time; but if Celia—and you—"

He paused, incoherent, boyishly confused. Yet what he had said had told the whole story to Mrs. Bender. She did not attempt to reply. She merely got out of the room. But as she slammed the door behind her she saw in a kind of back view the doctor and Celia rushing joyously together.

"I was tempted."

IMPRESSIONS EN ROUTE TO MEETING OF PRESS CLUB

BY MABLE DRAKE.

Chattanooga may be a warm place, but I will never believe it, and to sleep in a big, four-windowed room at the Patten with the curtains blowing at right angles inside is like sleeping on the top of a wind-mill, fanned by breezes furnished by a recent hail and rain storm. And never have I hated so to part from a room as I did that, the telephone bell rousing me with the suddenness of a fire alarm at 4 o'clock in the morning.

My first thought was to smash the telephone, my next to commit immediate suicide for ever having started on a trip that meant so early a rising, my next and intense desire to murder every member of the Tennessee Woman's Press and Authors' club, which was the cause of it all.

But the bell kept ringing, and only a hoarse and early morning call would silence it.

LOCAL NO. 1.

A half hour lat r, however, with Miss Zella Armstrong, president of the above, murderously regarded club, seated beside me and the train running sunnily along at the foot of Walden's ridge, I began to feel human again, though I thought more than once before the day was over of what a Capital City club man had said just the day before and which came to me Sunday morning like the voice of a prophet, "Do you know what I think is the best thing to do at 5 o'clock in the morning? Go back to bed."

But the ride was beautiful. Wide valleys across which the engine's smoke made swift cloud-like shadows, valleys cut by tree-bordered creeks and once by the broad copper-colored stream of the Tennessee. At times there were fields, bared and uncultivated, the red clay worn by the season-like fiels of lava dyed in blood, that farther on is burned into flower pots, millions of them piled about curious round kilns and the broken ones in heaps along the railroad tracks.

Leaving the kilns we began to see the tall furnaces of the iron companies, the smoke from the tall chimney stacks showing against the hill-covered heights of alden's Ridge like rising mist in the 5 o'clock sun.

At each station there were passengers to get on and passengers to get off, and each stop was followed by the odoriferous passing of the newsbutcher. "Chewing gum" and a wave of spear mint followed his coming and going. Bananas and peaches the size of a walnut came next, which left a combination of odors, "Lowney's" bonbons were not nose-ily noticeable, as "soiled peanuts" and drinking cups were also inoffensive.

For three hours each station was the prelude to the coming of the newsboy who seemed to have more success with eatables than with ols papers and the magazine, which smelled of all his other wares.

The Star Passenger.

Of course there were passengers and passengers, tall and lanky men and women, fresh-faced girls and boys, chubby babies, smiling and crying by turns, and all wearing their very best clothes.

The star passenger was just returning from the city. She wore first and foremost, both literally and mentally I am sure, a wonderful hat, a small boat-shaped affair of green not willow olive jade or any softening adjective you ever heard of but green, green-green, if you must have an adjective.

About the crown there was a wreath of flowers that would have brought joy to the soul of the cubist and more than usual disaster to his canvas, for the flowers were vivid and multi-colored and the wreath ended in the back by two uncurled ostrich plumes sky blue shading into raspberry pink and that's not all.

From the narrow little brim hanging from somewhere near the feathers were two waist-long streamers of inch wide black velour ribbon. There was a buckle, a long shell buckle on the hat too, but I don't expect any one to believe it, so I won't write about the buckle.

She—the lady, not the hat—wore a new waist with the price tag still on it, brand new hair, a new tailored suit. I know she called it "silk lined," when she wrote home about it. There was a lavish display of tools, watch-bracelet, ring and her shirt front looked like the pin case in a jeweler's shop, but let's go back to the scenery while the star passenger takes off his shoes, pins her hat on the cushioned back of the seat in front of her and goes to sleep behind the protecting darkness of her silk lined coat which is spread over her nicely powdered face.

Four Hours at Rockwood.

Rockwood is a little town with one long, shady street leading to the big iron works at the foot of the ridge—a mass of dull red chimneys, huge, bottle-shaped affairs, with others that look like mills of Holland without the wide, whirling wings; great sheds and, farther on, black mounds of slag. Rockwood's other street is lined with comfortable homes, set in the midst of wide-spreading trees, and Rockwood also has a very charming girl with a lovely smile and an automobile, who took us to ride in the latter and cheered us with the former.

There is another automobile also in Rockwood, which we coerced into taking us to the train when the hackman failed to come and Time was behaving in its usual wait-for-no-man style.

En Route to Bloomington.

The new train was also a local and as popular as an average street car which is parkward bound on Sunday.

There was also an indefatigable, noisy newsboy, but, above all, there was a wonderful stretch of rolling mountains, and, way off, miles down seemingly, the green and gold of fertile valleys.

The road, in contrast to that we took in the eary morning, is built on the top of a ridge curving and doubling about the hills, with at one time a bluff that suggests the Palisades, gray stone walls rising above a gorge cut, by a mountain stream.

Farther on the view widens into wave after wave of blue and green hills, and we are on top of the Cumberland mountains, with glimpses of farms in the valleys below fields of grain, stacked and looking, in the distance, like grazing flocks of dun-colored sheep.

At each station there are incoming and outgoing crowds, the girls with beaux and parasols and the men and women with children and bundles.

The track is bordered with a tangle of briar roses that are blooming as profusely as Dorothy Perkins, and in the fields there are patches of brilliant butterfly weed with the crimson cups of the trumpet vine swinging on the rail fences like a happy family of red birds.

Bloomington Spring.

We were met at Bloomington by a two-horse hack, enjoying the short drive in the cool of a threatening cloud after the last four hours of the second "local."

Bloomington Spring is at first glance a white and green coolness which separates itself into wide corniced white houses set about a magnificent grove of oaks and presiding over it a genial host and hostess, the inspiration of the homelike atmosphere of little colony.

The Club House.

The Club House, with capitals please, is the only home owned by an organization of like character to the International Woman's Press and Author's club, and is a log structure including one long room with broad porches on both sides, and is shadowed by the wide arms of a giant oak and the ambitious green of young maples.

Inside there is an attractive furnishing of wicker chairs and tables, the gift of the present president, and on the walls photographs of five of the presiding officers—Mrs. Grace McGowan Cooke, Mrs. Annie Booth McKinney, Mrs. Charles M. Grosvenor, Mrs. Gutledge Smith and Miss Armstrong.

The fourteenth annual meeting will open this evening, among the members who have already arrived including Miss Armstrong and Mrs. Charles H. Hyde, of Chattanooga; Mrs. Rutledge Smith, of Cookeville; Mrs. John Epperson and Miss Elizabeth Epperson, of Algood; Mrs. E. T. Latham, of Memphis; Miss Frances Morgan, of Franklin; Miss Tamar Thornburgh and Miss Libbie Morrow, Miss Will Allen Dromgoole, Miss Virginia Nelson, Mrs. Emma Lock Scott, Mrs Elizabeth Frye Page and Mrs. Charles Baker, of Nashville.

To Miss Tyler

Mr. Thomas Branch will entertain with a porch party Wednesday evening in compliment to Miss Anne Willingham and her guest, Miss Annie Tyler, of Sandersville.

Thursday Miss Willingham will give a matinee party in honor of Miss Tyler, and Monday evening she entertained eight friends at dinner.

The color scheme was in yellow and white. The decorations were daisies.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BED TIME

By Thornton W. Burgess

Believe all the good that you may hear.
But always doubt the bad;
Pass on the word of kindly cheer,
Forget the tale that's sad.

If every one would do that what a different world this would be! My, my, my, yes indeed! There wouldn't be any place for the Granny Foxes who start untrue stories just to make trouble. But we will have to say this much for old Granny Fox, she seldom makes trouble just for the sake of trouble. No, sir, old Granny Fox seldom, very seldom makes trouble unless she or Reddy Fox have something to gain by it. She is too smart and wise for that.

It was just that way now. You see she felt down in her heart that Old Man Coyote the Wolf had no right on the Green Meadows and in the Green Forest. He was a stranger from the Great West and she felt tha she and Reddy Fox had the best right there because they had been born there and always had lived there, and she was afraid, very much afraid, that there wouldn't be room for them and for Old Man Coyote. But she wasn't big or strong enough to fight him and drive him away, and so the only thing she could think of was to make him so much trouble that he would leave.

She had begun by telling an untrue story to Prickly Porky, a story which had made Prickly Porky very angry with Old Man Coyote, although they had never met. Now she was hurrying down to the Smiling Pool on the banks of which Old Man Coyote was in the habit of taking a sun bath, she had been told. Sure enough, when she came in sight of the Smiling Pool there he lay sprawled out in the sun and talking to Grandfather Frog, who sat on his big green lily pad out of reach from the shore. Granny Fox came up on the opposite side of the Smiling Pool from where Old Man Coyote lay.

"How do you do, Mr. Coyote? I have just heard that you have come here to make your home among us, and I am sure we all give you a hearty welcome," Granny said this just as if she really meant it, and all the time she was speaking she was smiling.

Old Man Coyote watched her out of half closed eyes and to himself he thought: "I don't believe a word of it. Granny Fox is too polite altogether too polite. I wonder what kind of a trick she is trying to play now." But aloud he said, and his voice was just as smooth and soft and pleasant at Granny's: "I'm very well, thank you, and I am much obliged to you for your hearty welcome. I am sure we shall be the best of friends."

Now, all the time he was saying this Old Man Coyote was chuckling inside, for he knew well enough that they wouldn't be friends and that Granny Fox didn't want to be friends. You see he is quite as sharp as she.

"Yes, indeed, I am sure we shall," replied Old Granny Fox. "How big and strong you are, Mr. Coyote. I shouldn't think that you would be afraid of anybody."

Old man Coyote looked flattered. "I'm not," said he.

Granny Fox raised her eyebrows as if very much surprised. "Is that so?" she exclaimed. "Why, I heard that Prickly Porky the Porcupine is boasting that you are afraid of him and don't dare put your foot in the Green Forest when he is about."

Old Man Coyote suddenly jumped to his feet, and there was an ugly gleam in his yellow eyes. Granny Fox was glad that she was on the other side of the Smiling Pool. "I don't know who this Prickly Pork is," said he, but if you'll be so kind as to tell me where I can find him, I think I will make him a call at once."

"Probably he's taking a nap in a treetop just now," replied Granny, "but if you really want to meet him you'll find him getting a drink at the Laughing Brook, in the Green Forest, late this afternoon. I do hope that you will be careful, Mr. Coyote."

"Careful! Careful!" snorted he. "There won't be any Prickly Porky when I get through with him!"

"Chugarum!" said Grandfather Frog, and looked very hard at old Granny Fox. Granny winked the eye that was nearest to him.

Americans Win at Tennis--Atlanta Tennis Players Go Good

Just 32 Hits In All Games In Southern

Foxen Got Away With Best Performance, While Hogg Allowed Most Hits--Average of Five Hits Per Club

Three nine-inning games and just 32 hits was the record class of baseball handed out by six Southern league clubs in the games of Monday. Of this bunch Mobile, the league leading club, got away with the smallest number when Foxen was hit safely but twice, while Birmingham, a near tail-ender, with 10 bingles, led the procession.

Just 32 hits in three ball games certainly shows a good line of hurling. This is but a fraction over 5 hits for each of the six clubs, and when a team does not make over 5 bingles a day the ball game is usually lost. With the small hitting naturally came very low scores, Birmingham leading the bunch with 4 runs on their 10 hits. No other club made more than three tallies.

Bradley Hogg, of Mobile; Bill Foxen, of Birmingham; Beck, of Nashville; E. Brown, of Montgomery; Graimes, of Chattanooga, and Newton, of Memphis, were the rival hurlers in the three star games. Of the outfit, Bradley Hogg, long the leading hurler of the league, was hit oftenest, while Bill Foxen, an ex-Cracker, was touched up for fewer bingles. The pitching in the other two games was a toss up. Newton allowed 6 hits, Beck and Grimes 5 each and T. Brown 6.

Sensational support was accorded Foxen in the setting of his two-hit battle, while errors bothered Hogg considerably. With the other hurlers the fielding was jam-up, errors not figuring in the final outcome. It was just a day of good hurling.

COLUMBUS CLUB AMONG VERY FASTEST NOW PLAYING GAME IN MINOR LEAGUES

Label 'em "Dangerous," "Use no hooks," "Handle with care," those American association Senators.

Ever since the A. A. was organized Columbus has been a dangerous outfit. Under Bill Clymer the team fell into the habit of crabbing confabs and, although Minneapolis and St. Paul interfered with the program from time to time, and Indianapolis turned the trick once, Columbus was always there or thereabouts, like the mosquito around the bald man.

This year Columbus is fighting desperately for the lead with Milwaukee. Both teams are traveling at top speed, and both are composed of youngsters sensational and veterans reliable, who are tramping upon opposition with no regard for feelings.

The brightest star of the Columbus aggregation is Kemper Shelton, for whom it is claimed that he is the speediest base runner in the association. Like other exceptionally fast men, Shelton is compared to Ty Cobb, baseball's last word in the sensational.

An exceptionally fast pair of infielders, Elmer Benson, second baseman, and Walter Gerber, shortstop, have much to do with the splendid defensive playing of the Senators.

Star of the sensational pitching staff is George McQuillen, ex-Phillie, who has been tamed by Bobby Quinn, the shrewd business head of the club. McQuillen is pitching grand ball, and an offer has been made, it is said, by the Cleveland American league club for his services.

Bill Hinchman, former Nap, is manager, and has shown unexpected strength since assuming the reins. One big reason for Columbus' steady winning is found in Sid Smith, formerly with Atlanta and Cleveland. Smith has caught every game played by the team this year, and his clever backstopping has turned the tide in many struggles.

In the picture is noticed Sidney Smith, the ex-Atlanta catcher, who is now regarded as one of the best receivers in minor baseball. This boy is the kind that can stand up and catch every day and never become any the worse for wear. He is a glutton for work and though he works hard he is always able to sting the ball.

Last season with Columbus Smith caught practically every game and starred with the willow. Scouts predict another trial in the big show for this ex-Cracker. At any rate, he is certainly moving at a fast clip right at the present time.

MUSSER WILL WORK FINAL

After two unsuccessful attempts to give a full afternoon's program the Feis and Crackers will attempt to play the last game of their series today.

There will be but one game this afternoon. Neither the first game of Sunday's double header nor yesterday's postponed game will be played off this afternoon.

Rube Evans was announced by Frank as this afternoon's hurler, while Bill Smith will in all probability allow Musser to give himself a birthday party today, celebrating his twenty-third year.

From New Orleans the Crackers journey to Mobile to challenge the opponents for three games. The last trip to Mobile resulted rather disastrously for the Crackers since they were unable to get away with a game.

STARS OF ONE DAY

Outfielder Cravath, of the Phillies, made only one home run, two doubles and a single in five times up in the game with Boston. Luderus, kicked in with a double and a couple of three sackers.

Two singles, a double and a home run was all McMillan, of Charleston, was able to do against the Macon hurlers in Monday's game. He was at bat four times and, considering this, did quite well.

Memphis made it three in a row over Chattanooga when Butler batted in a couple of tallies, while Newton held the Lookout scoreless. The hits were four and five, Memphis getting the big end.

Zack Wheat rapped out a home run in the tenth inning of the Giant-Brooklyn game, and it was all off for the Giants. Stengel happened to be on first at the time, and the count ended 4 to 2, with the Giants at the little end. In the second game it was all Mathewson, Doyle and Wheat were the hitting stars.

Moses, the ex-Mercer star, set down the Savannah club in order for the first six innings. Not even a base on balls was issued. The battle finally went twelve rounds without a score for either Albany or Savannah. Pool being the other hurler in the jam up battle.

When Hans Wagner can connect for but two singles in three times up there is but a chance for the Pittsburg Pirates to win. Almeida entered the game in a pinch and pounded out just a triple, which materially aided in the run scoring.

Jack Barry, of Philadelphia, made two home runs in three times up in the game against Boston. The Mackmen had a walk-away all the while, the count proving 11 to 4. Pipgras, of Boston, got hits in three times up was the hitting kid for the Red Sox.

Derrill Prat certainly strained himself trying to win over the Chicago White Stockings, getting a double and three singles in five times up. He batted in two of the three runs, but this was not enough, Chicago winning the second game 3 to 2 after the Browns had won the opener.

M'LOUGHLIN TAKES MATCH FROM ENGLISH COURT STAR

WUMBLEDON, England, June 24.—Three Americans won their matches on Monday in the British championship meet.

Wallace F. Johnson, of Philadelphia, defeated A. W. Andrews three sets, 6-4, 6-0, 6-2.

R. Morris Williams, a member of the United States Davis cup team, was drawn to meet P. Y. Tebush, but Tebush scratched.

The survivors in the first round include Stanley N. Doust, captain of the Australian Davis cup team, which was beaten in New York by the American team; R. F. Lesueur of the South African Davis cup team; C. P. Dixon, lawn tennis champion of Middlesex county; A. W. Gore, the British champion, and H. Nickelson.

Although McLoughlin's topping was good he was easily passed at the net. His fast service was a revelation to the onlookers, and when he settled down in the second set with his opponent leading 4-2, he quickly wiped off the deficiency and won by 8-6.

In the third set Barrett prover far better both at the back line and at the net. He took five games straight.

As the fourth set started the sun appeared. The American seemed to revel in its rays. He quickly established a lead of three games to one and lost only one other game in the set. His strong service gave him a tremendous advantage and his side line drives were magnificent.

In the fifth out McLoughlin got a lead of four games to two by smashing net play. With a great rally Barrett made it "four all" in the eighth game and took the ninth after an exciting exchange. The American then found himself again and easily won the tenth and eleventh games, and the match.

Americans in First String

McDermott Turned in Good Card in His Two Rounds, Taylor a Star

HOY LAKE, England, June 24.—When the first pair drove off in the open golf championship tournament at 9 o'clock this morning a half gale was blowing accompanied by a drenching rain. The greens showed few signs of flooding, but elsewhere on the links there were numerous puddles. The players found conditions very disagreeable.

In Monday's play John J. McDermott, of Atlantic City, champion of the United States, completed a fine first round in seventy-five strokes. J. H. Taylor, a former open champion, made it in seventy-three. Tom L. Scrymara, of Wollaston, Mass., the only other American competitor, took eighty strokes.

McDermott made the second round in 80 strokes and McNamara in 78. Taylor was leading with an aggregate of 148 for the two rounds, while McDermott's aggregate was 155 and McNamara's 158.

John J. McDermott made the second round in 80 strokes and Tom L. McNamara in 78.

J. H. Taylor, former British open *champion, was leading with an aggre*gate of 148 for the two rounds while McDermott's aggregate was 155 and McNamara's 158.

In the first round Alexander Herd and Edward Ray equalled J. H. Taylor's 73, while J. Howlett, E. Ojnes, J. B. Ross and T. G. Renouf handed in cards tying John J. McDermott's 75.

Edward Ray soon afterward dislodged J. H. Taylor from the lead by making an aggregate of 147, the best score of the day. Michael Moran, the Dublin player, was third, with 150.

ABOUT TIME FOR SPILL AMONG MOTOR RACERS

Two Meets Have Been Run Off Without an Accident--Next Meet Wednesday

The most amazing thing about the two race meets held thus far on the Atlanta motordrome is the fact that there has not been a "spill" yet, or course there have been oodles of them in practice and just before the first meet one of the machines caught fire and it and the rider circled the track, a blazing torch, for a half lap or so before the motorcycle slowed down enough to allow the rider to jump.

But one old-fashioned, blood-curdling spill, in which the man in front goes down and the riders behind pile up in a fine, messy heap—they haven't pulled off any of those as yet.

Old timers at the motorcycle racing game say that handily a motordrome of the score or so in the country, got through its first meet without at least one spectacular spill. The promoter of the old heads are inclined to predict some big ones for Wednesday night.

"They've got to come," said one of the officials today, an old-timer who has grown up with the game, beginning back when it was only bicycle racing on flat tracks. "We've been lucky to get through without any spills thus far. Two meets on a new track without one is ridiculous. Three times and out is what I'm looking for. I shouldn't be surprised to see three or four riders and an equal number of machines skating around the track at any old angle Wednesday night. That's the way it has always happened elsewhere."

It is a strange thing how many accidents happen to riders without fatal results. With machines running on a steep track at speed close to ninety miles an hour it would seem that a tumble would be as certain death as electrocuting. But it doesn't turn out that way. Riders will go down, while running full speed, others will pile up on top of them. The squirming mass will go swirling around the track, bumping to the top first and then down to the bottom again, and none of them will be the worse for it, perhaps, aside from a strain or two and a few bruises lodged in their legs and arms. Of course now and then there is a fatality but ordinarily a spill means a lot of excitement—and nothing worse.

Again Lois Cops

DOUGLASVILLE, Ga., June 24.—Lois baseball club kept up their winning streak by defeating Mableton Saturday 5 to 3. The features of the game were the pitching of Collins for Lois, who struck out nine men and gave up only three hits. The Lois team played big league ball behind him, and there was nothing to it but Lois. The Mableton boys played good ball, but the home team was too much for them. Score:

Atlanta Stars Win at Tennis

Smith, Thornton and Grant All Get Away With Matches in Southern Meet

NEW ORLEANS, June 24.—Play in the Gulf States Tennis tournament was begun here Monday with a long list of entries. Players from Atlanta, Dallas, Memphis and other southern cities are here to participate. Entries in the singles include fifty contestants and thirty-one teams were entered for the doubles.

The most important matches follow:

Singles:

Nat Thornton, of Atlanta, southern champion, easily disposed of Mayfield, New Orleans, in straight sets, 6-2, 6-2. Thornton was never compelled to extend himself.

B. Grant, of Atlanta, defeated Hochendels, of Baton Rouge, 6-2, 6-4.

Richardson, of New Orleans, defeated M. E. Carter, of Mephis, 6-3 6-2.

Leverich, of New Orleans, won from Mansfield, of Atlanta, 6-4, 6-4.

Shulton, of Dallas, defeated Warde, of New Orleans, 6-1, 6-0.

Wardel, of Memphis, defeated Henderson, New Orleans, 6-2, 6-4.

McGinnis, of New Orleans, defeated Reede, of Memphis, 8-10, 6-4, 6-4.

In the doubles, Thornton and Grant, of Atlanta, defeated Woody and Watt of New Orleans, 6-1, 6-2, 6-3.

Smith and Mansfield, of Atlanta, defeated Lawrence and Hiller, of New Orleans, 6-0, 6-2, 6-2.

HOW CLUBS PLAY TODAY

MOBILE, Ala., June 24.—Charles "Heinie" Berger, who won the game from New Orleans Friday, will work against Birmingham in the final game of the series today, with Charley Schmidt at the receiving end. Thompson will be on the mound for Birmingham with Mayer behind the bat. Centerfielder Knesley, of Birmingham, is out of the game for a time on account of a threatened attack of appedicitis. The weather is warm with possibility of showers.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 24.—Fleharty and Case are billed to be the opposing pitchers in the third game of the Nashville-Montgomery series this afternoon. Gibson and Donehue are scheduled to be in the receiver's box for the respective teams. The weather continues fair and oht.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 24.—For the concluding game of the present series with Chattanooga the locals have selected Klasinger and Snell as the battery to oppose Sommers and Street for the visitors. With three consecutive victories to their credit, the home team is hopeful of capturing the entire series from the Chattanoogans by winning today's game.

Weather clear and warm.

RAIN SPOILS BALL GAME

NEW ORLEANS, June 24.—The second game between Atlanta and New Orleans was knocked in the head by a severe hailstorm, which broke just as the crowd was assembling, and the heavy rainfall made play impossible.

Notwithstanding the fact that this is the second postponed game of the New Orleans series, there will be no double header Tuesday afternoon.

Boxer Pelky Freed By Jury

Not Held Responsible for the Death of McCarty During Recent Bout

CALGARY, Alberta, June 24.—Arthur Pelky, the pugilist, last night was acquitted of a manslaughter charge which was placed against him as a result of the death of Luther McCarty, who died in the first round of a scheduled ten-round bout at the Burns arena here May 24, last.

It was charged by the government that McCarty died as the result of a blow administered by Pelky. The jury was out less than an hour and a half before returning the verdict, although Chief Justice Harvey's charge was *said to be unfavorable to the defend*ant.

In his charge to the jury Justice Harvey, admitted that there was some doubt as to whether or not the contest was illegal, but he said there was no doubt that death had been caused by a blow *that the jury should con*sider only whether the defendant was guilty of causing the death of his opponent in an effort to win the prize placed upon the contest.

The contest which resulted in the manslaughter charge terminated when it had been in progress less than two minutes. The great crowd hardly had settled in the seats in anticipation of a gruelling battle when McCarty fell to the floor after a quick exchange of blows. The crown contended it was during this exchange that the blow to the jaw was struck.

When McCarty writhed to the floor Pelky followers in the stands cheered vociferously, believing a knockout blow had been administered. Death like stillness followed, however, when the pugilist failed to show any sign of life. Doctors soon pronounced him dead. Scenes of wild disorder followed and the crowd rushed into the ring, sweeping all before it.

Orders were issued by the crown for the arrest of all those connected with promotion, among them Tommy Burns, promoter o fthe contest. Referee Smith and William McCarney, McCarty's manager, were taken into custody, the latter two being held only as witnesses.

Startling developments followed in rapid succession after the principars of the affair had been released on bonds. The coroner's jury, which the crown charged was composed of friends of Burns, held an inquest and returned a verdict exonerating Pelkey and the others from all blame. The verdict was set aside by the crown.

A rider added to the verdict said the contest was a prize fight and asked that the Alberta government immediately take steps to stop such contests. Justice Harvey declared the rider was unnecessary, and that his charge and the verdict would accomplish that.

There Is No Reason Why Hurlers Should Not Be Good Batters—They Know the Pitching Game and Should Be Able to Solve an Apposing Slabber

Good pitchers are usually good hitters, most all of the stars of the major hills possessing good batting averages with the end of each season. Of course, they get in comparatively few games, yet they take advantage of the few times they do face the opposing slabbers and drive out a good number of hits.

In the Southern league it is the same way. Some of the leading flingers are at times used as pinch hitters and come through with the timely hits. This year the Southern league is possessed of many hard-hitting hurlers, the moguls at times working flingers on the infield or in the outer works just to get the benefit of their hitting ability.

Of the hurlers in the Southern league who have the knack of hitting the ball, you will find Manning, of Montgomery; Bagby, of the same club; Brady, of Atlanta; Campbell and Cavet, of Mobile, and Covleskie, of Chattanooga, right up in the select class. None of the bunch are slouches at that slam out the fluke hits, but sting the ball hard and often, getting away with many good ball games by coming through with a bingle *when it is most needed and least ex*pected.

In the two major leagues the same is true. Take the batting of Crandall, of New York; Mathewson, of New York; Robinson, of Pittsburg; Yingling, of Brooklyn; Rucker, of Brooklyn, and Camnitz, of Pittsburg. They all hit the ball quite often, and in the American league you will find the same class of hitting hurlers. There is McConnell, of New York; Wood, of Boston; Ford, of New York; Mullen, of Washington; Dubuc, of Detroit, and Steen, of Cleveland.

If you will take a glance at the pitching percentages returned in the American, Southern and National leagues for the season of 1912 you will note that those pitchers who possess the best batting averages are the ones who hit the ball harder and oftener. They all have averages ranging from .240 to .313, which is unusually good. Any pitcher who can turn in a batting average of .235 for a season is a mighty good clouter, as you will find scores of regulars who fail to attain this mark in their work of a season.

KNOW THE CURVES.

There is absolutely no real good reason why a hurler should not be a good batter. In view of the fact that he himself makes his living by fooling the batter, it is only natural that he could better judge what a pitcher is going to serve up to him when he is at the plate. Long duty in the box will naturally give a hurler the keenest insight into the pitching game and he should *be able to judge what a pitcher is go*ing to throw.

In the delivery of every different curve there is some motion that a hurler invariably makes which lets out the secret. Pitchers know this secret better than any one else and should better and more quickly detect it in any other hurler. Any real ball player can hit a straight ball if he only knows it is a straight one he is to be served. It is the slipping over of curves at an unexpected moment which makes batting puzzling and why a hurler cannot detect what kind of curve an opposing flinger is going to throw is just as puzzling as his failure to rap out many safe hits.

Often the hitting of a pitcher will ruin a good ball game. It is an understanding that but few hurlers can hit safely and for this reason whenever a slabber is at bat the pitcher doing box duty will become careless and slip over a straight one once in a while. Often a pitcher will become so wise that brother slabber and line out a drive which will break up the ball game.

One of the main reasons for the poor batting of a pitcher is the entertaining of scruples against getting on the base lines where he will have to exert himself. Pitchers know that in running bases they are forced to exert themselves a great deal and this often handicaps them in box work. Except in cases of emergency it is a good deal better to get out with as little exertion as possible and retain your pitching strength than to hit out a hit and have to run around the base lines and thus hurt yourself for further slab duty. But, in a close game or in a pinch this is different.

PITCHED SEVENTY BALLS IN REGULAR GAME.

NEW YORK, June 24.—According to an unofficial contest Christy Mathewson pitched only seventy balls to the Brooklyn batsmen in the nine innings of yesterday's game. The record for delivering the small number of balls in nine innings was set in 1891, when Ben Sanderson, of the Philadelphia Athletics, pitched sixty-eight to the St. Louis Browns.

BY GRANTLAND RICE

DOES THIS SOUND FAMILIAR.

He beat me fairly, I've no kick;
No hard luck yarn to hand in, but
I should have won if I had sunk
An eight-inch putt.

No, I've no kick to make at all;
No handy alibi to frame;
How did he beat me? Oh, well I
Was off my game

I've no excuse to shoot, old top,
Beneath the everlasting sun;
He had me seven down, and yet
I should have won.

Brooklyn is still loyal to its ball club, but the early unseemly excitement over where the flag pole should be planted has about subsided. Even the most rabid Dodger fanatic is now willing to admit that the Phillies, Giants or Cubs have a chance.

NO $10,000 ACHIEVEMENT.

Loud noises were made over the fact that young Mr. Schauer, the Giants' recent purchase, upset Rube Waddell. There was a time when this would have meant something. But the last time we heard from the once renowned Rube J. Barleycorn had him nine down and seven to play with the Rube hitting the back of the cup on all his approaches.

The main trouble seems to be that the Athletics don't lost often enough to learn how it is done. The Yanks and Browns and Reds have lost so often that they have become proficient in the habit and have thereby made defeat a science.

These three clubs can lose games now by scientific devices the Mackmen have never dreamed of, much less practiced. When one starts losing it's the easiest thing in the world to pick up new devices for defeat as the old ones wear out. But when a club loses but once a week, how can it be expected to know anything about the true science of defeat?

WOOD'S RECORD SAFE.

It begins to look as if Joe Wood's 1912 mark of thirty-three victories and five defeats is safe from Johnson's heedless assault. The Senatorial Shrapnel has now dropped four out of eighteen starts and this leaves him but little margin to work on. To tie Wood's showing he must gather in nineteen of his next twenty games, as close to being a perfect stymie as anything we know of. Johnson is forced to carry too much of a burden to crack any records. If he hasn't a hard batting club behind him for in three of his four defeats he has been shut out where even perfect pitching would have yielded a draw.

To beat Chesbro's season record of wins Johnson needs thirty more victories as Happy Jack amassed forty-three wins in 1904. It can be done but not for any of our coin. It merely means two victories a week for the rest of the season. Only that.

The name "Braves" was a merry josh until George Stallings too hold. Now it is beginning to attach a bit of local color and means something more than a proof.

No one has ever called Stallings the greatest leader in baseball, and again no one has ever led as many forlorn hopes out of the rut as he has. Give Stallings a bat, bag and inside of two weeks he would have it up on its feet sparring whether it struck a blow or not. As the injector of the old pep into battered hulks and shattered carcasses there's no one else close to his class.

THE EVIDENCE.

There seems to be a trifle of discussion as to whether or not certain western golf cracks are professionalizing themselves by taking a Pacific coast tour.

Just what is a professional golfer? Old Man Hughie Fullerton once confessed to us that he couldn't be called a pro. If he was drawing $10,000 a year, from the game. The idea a good many have of a professional status is any man able to reach as many as eight of the eighteen greens in two shots. If it's a question of financial emolument we know a lot of so-called amateurs who have made a living from the game off us alone.

ATHLETICS ARE IMPROVING WITH EACH BIG TOURNAMENT

BOSTON, June 24.—The intercollegiate games in the Harvard stadium at Cambridge drove further home the fact that this country is making greater athletic strides, and making them faster than ever before.

Aside from Jones' great mile performance, the class of the work done by the college youths in the big Cambridge meeting was nothing less than marvelous.

The world's record went by the board in the mile as noted above. The 100-yard was run in 9 4-5 seconds, and in the furlong dash Lippincott tied the world's record of 21 1-5 seconds. In the quarter-mile three men got home inside of 49 seconds—another wonderful running. The half-mile was a trifle slow as compared with recent standards, for two reasons—namely, Jones was "done up" after his hard mile, and Meredith was not eligible for the race. Watch it next year with Ted in the running.

Again in the low hurdles the world's record was equalled by Jim Wendell, the quiet young man from Wesleyan, who ran second in the hurdle event at the Olympic last summer. In the shotput Whitney, of Dartmouth, and Beatty, of Columbia, both beat 47 feet, while in the pole vault *five men did 12 feet or bet*ter, and so on right through the program.

The great list of athletes that competed in the intercollegiates probably represents 25 per cent of the competitive strength of the United States in an international meet, yet the same 25 per cent could take the Olympic team of Sweden, Great Britain or Finland out and give the best of them an awful drubbing in a straight track and field meet.

Scholastic competition does more than the actual development of the athletic qualities in the lads who take part in the games. The excitement of early competition breeds in the youngsters a love of the game that starts them early to looking after their condition and keeping away from all forms of dissipation. An early athletic career also teaches self-reliance that is not at all bad for a youth. The idea of conquering in contests imbues the youth with the idea that leads him to business conquests and shapes his entire after life.

Four New Players Signed by Chance

NEW YORK, June 24.—Frank Chance, manager of the local American league team, has signed four new players. Two of them are college men: Dan Costello, a second baseman from Mount St. Mary's college, Emmettsburg, Md., and Tom Hanly, a left-hand pitcher from Manhattan college. The other two are Williams, catcher and first baseman, who was purchased from Galveston, and Jay Rogers, a catcher from the Richmond club of the Virginia league.

Bout Is Stopped As Boxers "Stall"

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 24.—What was to have been an eight-round bout here last night between Joe Jeannette, of New York, and Jeff Clark, of Joplin, Mo., negro heavyweights, was stopped by the referee in the last round and declared "no contest." Jeanette had the better of the bout from the start and, in the opinion of the referee, was making no effort to dispose of his opponent.

No-Hit-No-Run Games Are Diet of Dixie's New Pitching Wonder

No-hit-no-run games are becoming a habit with Booth Hopper, of the New Haven (Eastern association) club, who looms as another baseball star from Dixie.

Hopper has pitched two no-hit-no-run games this season, Pittsfield, Mass., being the victim on tach occasion.

Hopper started poorly, being knocked out by Waterbury in his first game. Three days later he pitched his no-hit-no-run game at New Haven. The nhe relieved Burch and went three innings without a hit or a run. A week later he pitched nine innings without a hit or a run, and then blanked Springfield with five hits.

Hopper pitched 22 successive innings without allowing a hit and 42 innings without being scored upon. He is 21 and hails from Jackson, Tenn. He began his career in 1911 in the Three-I league, and in June joined New Haven, of the old Connecticut league, and, although not in good health, proved the mainstay of the team.

This season Hopper's work has drawn big league scouts to New Haven. Hopper is a big fellow, standing 5 feet 11 inches and weighing 165. He has speed and a good change of pace. He uses the spitter effectively. Believing he has a wonder in the boy, George Cameron, owner of the club, has refused all offers to date.

BOOTH HOOPER.

Burns Gets Draw With Champ Coulon

KENOSHA, Wis., June 24.—Johnny Coulon, the bantamweight champion, last night fought a ten-round draw with Frankie Burns.

For four rounds the two bantams boxed toe to toe without either gaining the advantage. The fifth round went to Burns by a big margin, the sixth was even, and Coulon won the seventh. In the eighth and ninth both seemed tired. Coulon started in the tenth with a rush, but Burns, it was claimed, had a shade the better of the round.

NEW DELIVERY IS USED BY LAVENDER, OF THE CUBS

Georgia Boy Has to Take Up Freak Motion to Keep in the Big Show

Rising from a mass of entangled and forlorn athletic talent, Jim Lavender, the leading citizen of Montezuma, Ga., remarks that he is not yet through with the major leagues, writes Irving Vaughn in the Chicago Record-Herald. Age has not yet carried away the cunning of the pitching arm, nor has Jim been notified of release or anything of that nature, but he has turned his ear to the wind and listened for the call that is a nightmare to them all.

Lavender's hopes of remaining in the big league hang around the use of the slow ball, which is as deceptive as the curve or fast one. To date the work of the young club pitcher has been a bitter disappointment. His brilliant performance last season forced him and Evers to expect big things of himself this season, and now that he has failed in his task, his hopes have faded like a morning mist. However, the ambition to do things is still there, and if the "spitball" expert doesn't get a go*ing soon it will be because* he has lost his stuff and because the slow ball has failed to fill the gap between a winner and a loser.

When Lavender broke into the big leagues last spring he changed his style of pitching entirely. For several seasons he had been working in the International league, and never won under twenty games per. When Chance took him in tow the P. L. wouldn't stand for the use of the slow ball, so Lavender had to do without it. Despite the change, however, he prospered with the "spitter" and fast ball and occasional curve, but it was hard work. At least, Lavender thinks so now.

To convince one how much a slow ball helps, Lavender claims he never used less than three out of five throughout his minor league career. He saved the "spitter" and speed for use in emergency, and thus rested most of the time. In that way he was usually equal to the hardest kind of a task, and once getting back onto safe ground, it was an easy matter again to work in his slow ball, and thus make up for the extra exertion.

After suffering all sorts of humiliation during the early innings in the recent exhibition games at Muscatine, Ia., Lavender was so disgusted that he made up his mind to fall back on his *old line of stuff. It was merely an ex*periment, as the old style had been in the discard for a season. Lavender found that the slow ball sandwiched in had the effectiveness of yore, and immediately he made up his mind to try it in his next start. Of course he was up against minor league batting talent, but this is of no account, as Lavender only wished to learn whether he could handle an additional twister in his already crowded assortment.

While speaking of the Muscatine game (we realize all right that it is a shame to stir up bygones), it might be added that there is a big chance of one of the Muskees becoming a Cub before long. The manager of the Hawkeye club admitted that the Chicago president was after one of his men, but didn't divulge the identity of the individual. It is a cinch bet that it is George Zackert, the pitcher who faced the Cubs, as he was groomed for the battle so that the majors could see him in action. He is a big southpaw, with speed and a pretty drop, but if the club batters are to be believed, he cannot put enough stuff on the ball. They say this, even though he had enough to deceive them.

Semi-Finals of Metropolitan

NEW YORK, June 23.—It is expected W. H. Washburn and C. F. Watson, Jr., of Orange, won their places in the semi-final round of the Metropolitan championship lawn tennis singles here Wednesday. Inman defeated S. H. Veshell, 8-6, 1-6, 9-7. Washburn won from Dr. William Rosenbaum, 6-0, 6-3. Watson defeated Dr. Ewing Taylor, 6-3, 6-2. The contest between G. M. Church and T. R. Pell was called because of darkness, after each had won one set. In the previous round Church defeated Dean Mathey, 6-4, 6-3.

In the doubles, S. H. Voshell and F. Baggs defeated F. H. Gates and R. C. Gates, the Yale pair, 6-2, 2-6, 6-2. The winning pair reached the semi-finals round.

Nearby Towns In City Leagues

There is a movement on foot to start one of the most up-to-date amateur leagues that the city has ever known. For many years; in fact ever since Atlanta has had amateur baseball, the City league has been the fastest that the city has known. For some reason or other, the teams that have made up the league were unable to agre on certain points, and the league was not organized until pretty late in the season, and then after getting a bad start, interest lagged and they finally disbanded.

Mr. Grist, the president of this league, determined to start a city league with teams in the nearest adjoining towns. He investigated this and met with the greatest enthusiasm. The towns that have shown the greatest promise and made known their intentions to apply for franchises in this league are Gainesville, Buford, Norcross, Southern Shops (Atlanta), Georgia Railway and Power company (Atlanta), and either Decatur of Lawrenceville.

The league will be run on amateur principles, but the class of ball that will be played will equal that played in many class B leagues. There will be games played twice weekly, probably at 6 o'clock, when plans will be ably on Friday and Saturday.

A meeting has been called for next Wednesday night at 97 Peachtree to be formulated and a schedule adopted. All managers are urged to be present and bring with them their reserve lists. The league will try to start next Friday.

Valdosta Club Wins Over Brunswick, 8-6

VALDOSTA, Ga., June 24.—In a slow, ragged game, Valdosta took the first game of the series from Brunswick, 8 to 6. Bundy, at third, for Brunswick; Schwartz, at short, and Vandlingham, in center for Valdosta, featured in fielding, and Parker, for Brunswick, in hitting, the latter getting a double and three singles out of five times up.

Money Too Plentiful; Fighting Too Little

Ex-Champion Believes Boxers of the Present Day Get Too Much Money for Too Little Work—Fake Injuries

BY ROBERT FITZSIMMONS.

Ex-heavyweight Champion of the World.)

NEW YORK, June 24.—Too much money for too little fighting is taking the edge off the old sport. When I first came to America very good men in all classes were glad to fight for anything from a hundred or a couple of hundred dollars. Only the big champions got big money.

Fighting was a rough game then. It wasn't so much the money that drew men to the ring. Most of them fought because they'd rather fight than do anything else. Why, among the old-time lightweights Joe Gans, Dal Hawkins, Kid McFadden, Kid McPharland and that lot—any one of whom would be a world's champion today—used to fight for purses of $500, $999 or $700. And they'd fight winner take all and be glad to get the chance.

Now look at the lightweights today and what they get and what they expect. Ad Wolgast is a good little fighter, but he isn't any better than a whole lot of the old-timers. Wolgast got into the habit of demanding something like $2,000 for his "end" whenever he was asked to make a match. He got the money madness and got it bad.

After Ritchie beat him and took the title one might expect to hear of Wolgast's being willing to fight all the best lightweights as fast as he could get them, for any fair purse offered, to work back into the title again. He didn't do it. Even after he was beaten by Tommy Murphy he had an idea that he was worth as much as ever in the ring. Wolgast has probably broken off and refused more matches and has fought less as a champion than any title holder in the business. Perhaps he's unlucky; but I know some of the old-timers who wouldn't have called off a match for a dislocated thumb, the way Wolgast has called off his match with Featherweight Dundee at the last moment, and called it off for good.

BROKEN LEG EXCUSE.

We didn't call off matches for anything less than a broken leg when I was fighting. I remember the day I boxed Jack O'Brien in Philadelphia. That match was on once and I trained for it and got into good shape. Then the match was postponed and I was finally notified that it was all off. I got out of training and didn't do a stroke of work for several weeks. Suddenly I was notified that the fight was on again in a couple of days. I learned that O'Brien had been fixing it. He had been training down at Atlantic City all the time getting ready to put it over the "old man" when he caught him out of condition. I didn't call it off. I went down to Philadelphia and had O'Brien on the floor, whipped and practically out, when the police jumped in to save him with half a minute of the round still to go.

The night I won the light-heavyweight title from George Gardner I was in poor shape to fight. I had run so much on the road in my few days of training, taking off weight in a hurry, that I had blistered the entire soles of both feet. I could hardly walk. Every time I moved around my shoes filled with blood. I didn't call it off. I walked to the ring without limping and fought twenty rounds without letting him know I was half crippled. And in the fourth round I mashed my right hand hitting him on the side of the head, driving the first two knuckles back a full inch and splintering the bones. I didn't let him know that until it was over either. I beat Corbett with a dislocated right thumb, and fought Jefferies with two smashed hands. When I fought Johnson my right arm was twisted by Jeanette in training and all the ligaments torn away from the elbow. I couldn't even block with that arm, and in the dressing room a doctor drew off a pint of fluid to take down the big swelling. I fought Sharkey *and Ruhlin when I was so full of ma*laria fever I didn't half know where I was, and knocked them both out. We didn't call fights off for little things in those days.

Comparing the chances we used to take with the careful way managers nurse along their boxers now, I can't help thinking that this no decision, short bout thing, with big money paid both men and no "quarter-take-all" fighting, is making what my friend Theodore Roosevelt calls "mollycoddles" of what might be a lot of good men.

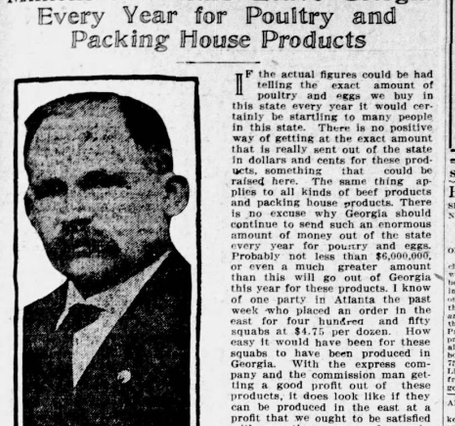
POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

Millions of Dollars Leave Georgia Every Year for Poultry and Packing House Products



IF the actual figures could be had telling the exact amount of poultry and eggs we buy in this state every year it would certainly be startling to many people in this state. There is no positive way of getting at the exact amount that is really sent out of the state in dollars and cents for these products, something that could be raised here. The same thing applies to all kinds of beef products and packing house products. There is no excuse why Georgia should continue to send such an enormous amount of money out of the state every year for poultry and eggs. Probably not less than $6,000,000, or even a much greater amount than this will go out of Georgia this year for these products. I know of one party in Atlanta the past week who placed an order in the east for four hundred and fifty squabs at $4.75 per dozen. How easy it would have been for these squabs to have been produced in Georgia. With the express company and the commission man getting a good profit out of these products, it does look like if they can be produced in the east at a profit that we ought to be satisfied with even the express and commission on them when produced here at home, but this state of affairs continues to exist and thousands of squabs, ducks, poultry and eggs are brought into every large city in the state every year, and our good money sent out of the state for them.

Frying chickens were selling on Broad street Saturday retail at 65c and 75c each. Of course they were firstclass in quality but readily brought these prices, the highest price I have ever seen paid for fryers in Georgia. I suppose they are worth it and as supply and demand govern the price they are readily selling at this price. The people have to be fed and they will have something good and that they can afford even at any price. When poultry brings such prices as this there can be an enormous profit in them, especially to the farmer who can produce them at so low a cost.

I also saw one-half of a western beef sell last week in Atlanta for more than $75. Suppose one-fourth of the farmers in Georgia had five such animals to sell each year, which they could have had sufficient food to grow them on, and this food could be had if enough time was left off from cotton crop to prepare for and produce it. I am sure it would be far easier to raise five steers such as this every year than to attempt to raise fifteen bales of cotton which would be about the equal of five such steers. There certainly is a good profit in poultry and five stock steers. There certainly is a profit in poultry and live stock in the south the food to grow them which can be so easily don if we once get in the at prices they are now bringing, especially if the people would produce half of boys so.

With pork and mutton selling in proportion to poultry and beef a young man and the farmer who takes up this lin eof work in hte south now certainly has an opportunity before him such as has never been presented before, and if they will work one-half as hard as many do in the city with live stock and food to raise it with there is no reason why a man of this country cannot make much larger salaries on the farm than it is posible for them to secure as a clerk or salesman in many stores that thousands of boys are now spending their life at. With the thousands of acres in this state capable of producing such things we need hundreds of producers on the farms where we now have one.

Yours very truly,

LORING BROWN.

NOTICE

FULL INSTRUCTIONS FOR SUCCESSFULLY GROWING ALFALFA (IN BOOKLET FORM) WILL BE MAILED TO ANY ADDRESS ON RECEIPT OF A TWO-CENT STAMP TO PAY POSTAGE.

As I have received hundreds of letters from people desiring this information I have had this little booklet published and will be glad to send it to anyone desiring same.

Yours very truly,

LORING BROWN,

QUESTIONS ASKED AND ANSWERED.

QUESTION.

Dawson, Ga.

Will you please tell me what is the matter with my chicks, and what to do for them? They are six and nine weeks old, respectively. I give them scratch feed, milk and green feed. I keep permanganate of potash in their drinking water. Some eat heartily and others do not. They are taken suddenly and seem drunk and rear their heads back, then fall and whirl around, trying to get up. They live only a few hours. Some few get well. I keep their premises clean.

Will greatly appreciate immediate information. A. L.

ANSWER.

Evidently there is something in the feed you are giving your chickens that is causing the trouble, and they are suffering with liver trouble or indigestion. The scratch feed should be reduced, and the milk should be fed thickened with equal parts of corn meal and wheat bran. The permanganate of potash should not be given regular in the water and should not be given at all unless they have colds. It is a good thing, but should be used with judgment. Too much will do just as much harm as none at all. Chickens that are hearty and have a good appetite do not need doctoring. Judgment in feeding and plenty sound, wholesome feed is all that is necessary to have chickens thrive and do well and is worth more than all the medicine that can be given. Change your feed, stop giving the permanganate. Examine your chickens closely for lice and mite, separate the strong and weak chickens and do not keep too many together. By doing this they should get along all right.

QUESTION.

Having been for a long time very much interested in your writings in The Journal I will take the liberty of asking if you can tell me what ails my Belgian hare, who is six months old. We keep the pair of hares in a piano box, and about three weeks ago noticed the buck lame in one leg. Since then on dry warm days we have let them out in the yard and the buck appeared to be all right again until last Tuesday. When we put him out, he jumped around as lively as the rest, but about one hour later I found him paralyzed from his shoulders back. Next morning his head was drawn back, but he is still living. A couple of years ago my husband had a lot of hares which also became afflicted with the same malady, except it seemed to take only the real young ones just after being weaned.

Any information you may render will be very much appreciated and with many thanks in advance, I am, MRS. G. K.

Atlanta, Ga.

ANSWER.

Belgain hares and all other kinds of rabbits are subject to many troubles, usually caused from indigestion and over feeding, and I think this has been largely the trouble with yours. They should have principally well cured alfalfa hay and rolled oats or oat meal in some form. Oats with husks on are hard to digest and often cause bad results. As you have had this trouble in your rabbits before, it is possible that the trouble is hereditary and is hereditary or has been brought about by your system of feeding. The rabbits referred to will probably die, as they usually do when anything gets wrong with them. Some rabbits seem to thrive and do well under many conditions, while many others are hard to raise. I think this is largely brought about from the feeding stock being weak in constitution. Inbreeding and improper feeding will degenerate or weaken the constitution of rabbits, poultry and live stock and a successful breeder who watches these things closely is usually the one who makes a success in all lines.

If you will send 50 cents to the American Poultry Journal, Chicago, they will send you a book on rabbits that will give you much information than I could possibly write.

SEED, PET STOCK and SUPPLIES

H. G. HASTINGS & CO., SEEDS, PLANTS AND POULTRY SUPPLIES. NORTH & SOUTH SIDE DELIVERIES 9 A. M. INMAN PARK & WEST END, 2 P. M.

ONE of the greatest drawbacks to poultry raising in the south is lice. They kill more little chicks and cause more diseases combined, and when a hen is full of lice you cannot expect her to lay many eggs. However, if you start in time you can get rid of these pests without very much trouble. Cleanliness is the main thing to consider. Keep the house cleaned out and once a week at least spray thoroughly all the roosts, dropping boards and nests with Pratt's or Conkey's Lice Liquid. They are good preparations and are guaranteed to kill. It is also a good plan to use Pratt's or Conkey's 25c box of Conkey's Lice Powder will dust about 75 hens and if used in connection with Lice Liquid, you can soon have your flock free from these pests and you can soon see the good results from the increased egg production.

ARE your baby chicks lousy? Better examine them and if they are get a package of Conkey's or Pratt's Head and Body Ointment, prepared especially for baby chicks; rub a little back of the head and under each wing and you will positively kill every louse on them. Only 25c each. Order today. Model Poultry Farm, "The Farm of Quality," Colbert, Ga.

IT IS not a good plan to feed much corn during the hot weather. Pratt's Lice Liquid and Pratt's Scratch Feed that are offered have about three-fourths corn. The Red Comb brand has only a small percentage and is by far the best scratch feed sold in this market. $2.25 per 100 pounds.

Desirable Peachtree Lots.

There is no use in going into detail in regard to Peachtree street property. Every person in Atlanta knows Peachtree street, knows its desirability and also knows its PRICE, which as a rule is just a little beyond some of us.

We have had listed with us some unusually pretty building lots, some this side of Buckhead, and some just beyond. These lots have a frontage of 100 feet on Peachtree with a depth of about 425 feet, being beautifully shaded.

The price on these particular lots is from $10.00 to $15.00 under the market, making the PRICE within the reach of anyone who contemplates a Peachtree Home.

Former Trounstine Home on Washington Street Brings $25,000—Ponce de Leon Avenue Corner Resold for $16,500. North Avenue Vacant Lot Sale—New Building at 28-30 Capitol Avenue—Good Volume of Transfers Recorded

Some important sales were announced Tuesday. Feeling is more cheerful now than for two or three months, and there is a general loosening up.

Indications are not only strong for a big revival in the fall, but also for a steady business through the dull summer months.

The market here is governed more by outside conditions than the average person supposes. President Wilson's message to congress Monday on the currency question made a profound and favorable impression on agents and investors.

WASHINGTON STREET SALE.

An important sale on the south side has just gone to record.

J. B. Frost has sold to M. A. Massond No. 209 Washington street, formerly the Trounstine home. The consideration was $25,000.

This property begins 161 feet north of Clarke street. It has a frontage of 53 feet and a depth of 200, with a two-story dwelling on it. This is the property which Mr. Trounstine gave as part payment for parcels on Decatur street.

PONCE DE LEON SALE.

Ware & Harper have sold for M. A. Massond to Mrs. Mattie S. Hewitt the southwest corner of Ponce de Leon and Highland avenues. The consideration was $16,500.

This corner is vacant, having 150 feet of frontage on Ponce de Leon avenue and 90 feet on Highland.

This is the third sale of this parcel during the season. Originally it had 200 feet of frontage on Ponce de Leon avenue and a two-story frame dwelling. The latter was moved to the rear and with 50 feet was reserved.

In the present transaction Mrs. Hewitt gave as part payment No. 53 Orme street, a dwelling on a lot 42x100, valued at $5,500.

NORTH AVENUE SALE.

The Martin-Ozburn Realty company has sold for H. Lewis to P. H. Randall a vacant lot on West North avenue east of Williams street for $4,000.

This lot is on the north side of the street between Williams and Spring street. It has a frontage of 45 and a depth of 200 feet.

CAPITOL AVENUE BUILDING.

A building permit was granted Tuesday for a two-story brick building at Nos. 28 and 30 Capitol avenue. The permit was for $9,000.

It was taken by the Hall Association of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics, and will be used by them as an assembly hall. The property is between Hunter street and Capitol square.

MANY BONDS RECORDED.

Fourteen bonds for title went to record Tuesday, most of which were new transactions.

The considerations are small, but they show quite a large volume of business in a diversified territory. There were also some warranty deeds that represented new transactions.

WARM WELCOME AWAITS THE FIRE PREVENTERS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MOULTRIE, Ga., June 24.—Moultrie will give a warm welcome to the delegation from the Georgia Fire Prevention society, which has an engagement here on Thursday.

About twenty representatives of the society are expected for the day, and a meeting has been arranged in which the Moultrie mayor and council and the chamber of commerce will act as hosts and will lend every encouragement to the fire prevention movement.

It is understood that public buildings of Moultrie, including the school buildings, the opera house, picture shows, hotels and public gathering places will be inspected. The inspection will be made in the morning, and a summary of conditions found will be brought before the mass meeting in the afternoon at 4 o'clock, which will be held in the court house.

COTTON SEED CRUSHERS PROTEST NEW TARIFF

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, June 24.—The Interstate Cotton Seed Crushers' association, said to represent almost the entire cotton mill industry in the country, at its annual convention last night adopted a resolution protesting against the proposed removal of camels' hair press cloth from the free list and placing it on the dutiable list at 15 per cent ad valorem.

The resolution stated that this removal, while allowing silk bolting cloth used in flour milling to remain on the free list, "is a discrimination against a distinctly southern industry in favor of a northern one."

A copy of the protest was telegraphed to all senators representing cotton growing states.

SAVANNAH POLICEMAN RECOVERS FROM INJURY

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 24.—Officer Stephenson, of the Savannah police department, has recovered from the effects of the injuries he suffered yesterday afternoon in Yamacraw, when he was assaulted by a gang of negroes, who tried to take a prisoner away from him.

It looked for a time as if the Yamacraw riot of twenty-five years ago was about to be repeated, but fortunately assistance came and the reserves from the barracks reached the spot in time to prevent any serious trouble. Several of those interested in the affair were before the recorder this moning.

M'NAB AFFAIR WILL BE INVESTIGATED THURSDAY

House Judiciary Committee Decides to Inquire Into Reason for Delay Order

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The house judiciary committee at a hearing Thursday will investigate the delay order by Attorney General McReynolds in federal prosecutions at San Francisco of Maury Diggs and Drew C. Camenetti, indicted under the white slave law, and officers of the Western Fuel company, indicted for conspiracy to defraud the customs.

The affair was brought up at the cabinet meeting but Attorney General McReynolds refused to discuss it.

When the cabinet meeting broke up Attorney General McReynolds said:

"The president will issue a statement in duce course."

It was understood that the attorney general's report presented at President Wilson's direction was an oral one and that Secretary Bryan, a friend of the elder Camenetti, and that Secretary Lane, familiar with California affairs, participated in the discussio, which was general.

Floyd Baptists Meet

(Special Dispatch to the Journal.)

ROME, Ga., June 24.—The Baptists of Floyd county will hold their "fifth Sunday" general meeting on Friday, June 27, with the DeSoto Park Baptist church. A number of interesting topics will be discussed by leaders of the denomination who will gather here for the session. One of the live topics will be, "Can we as Baptists expect satisfactory results from the preaching by our pastors against immorality and vice as long as our churches fail to cooperate with them in enforcing a strict discipline accordingly?"

Effective Sunday, May 25. Popular excursions to Warm Springs via A., B. & A. Only $1.00 round trip. Train leaves Union Station 8:00 a. m. Delightful outing.

Men Welcome Mother's Friend
A Duty that Every Man Owes to Those who Perpetuate the Race.
It is just as important that men should know of progressive methods in advance of motherhood. The suffering incident to child-bearing can be easily avoided by having at hand a bottle of Mother's Friend.

This is a penetrating, external application that relieves all tension upon the muscles and enables them to expand without painful strain upon the ligaments. Thus there is avoided nervous spells; the tendency to nausea or morning sickness is counteracted, and a bright, happy disposition is preserved that reflects wonderfully upon the charcter and temperament of the little one soon to come. You can obtain a bottle of "Mother's Friend" at any drug store at $1.00. It preserves the mother's health, enables her to make a complete recovery, and thus with renewed strength she will eagerly devote herself to the care and attention which mean so much to the welfare of the child. Write to the Bradfield Regulator Co., 229 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their valuable and instructive book of guidance for expectant mothers.

REBELLIONS ENDANGER MEXIC NATIONAL ROAD

Officers Resign and Leave Road on Hands of War Department to Operate

MEXICO CITY, June 24.—E. N. Brown and A. Clarke, president and general manager, respectively, of the Mexican National Railway system, resigned yesterday. Their successors have not been announced. It is reported the motive for the resignation lay in the financial difficulties which the system has been forced to face as well as difficulties of operating in a rebel-infested country.

It also is believed the tendency of the government commissions to interfere in the operation of the railways played a part in determining this action. It is reported that a majority of Americans in the service will follow their chiefs.

The war department announced that it will devote all its energies to opening the National railroad, but that it probably will be ten days before repairs to Saltillo are made.

Directors of the National railway will meet today to select the successor of Mr. Brown. It is said efforts are being made to induce C. R. Hudson, the vice president, to accept the presidency.

A contributory cause for the resignations of Messrs. Brown and Clarke was too insistent suggestions on the part of the government that the road reinstate any employes who were laid off on account of the curtailed service.

A few of the directors appear to believe that Brown and Clarke may not insist on withdrawing.

Governor Pesquiera Denies Loss of Battle

(By Associated Press.)

DOUGLAS, Ariz., June 24.—Governor Pesquiera, of Sonora, telegraphed an angry denial from Hermosillo today of reports emanating from Mexico City and Nogales that General Pedro Ojeda had defeated a superior force of state troops in the battles of Ortiz and Santa Rosa.

Ojeda was still bottled up at Santa Rosa near Ortiz, the governor asserted in his message. Federal troop trains were stalled by stretches of wrecked roadway, it was declared and the rebels were pressing on to certain victory.

The battle continued yesterday and today around Santa Rosa.

CLEVELAND, June 24.—Joseph Pucci, seventy-three years old, of Youngstown, today climbed to the top of the pier of the new high level bridge and committed suicide by leaping to the paving 160 feet below.

a large number of friends who are loyal in their support, I am convinced that the number is not sufficient to elect me, and in justice to them I now retire from the race for speaker."

RACE IN SENATE.

The race for president of the senate continues lively, and will undoubtedly have to be settled on the floor of the senate Wednesday. Senator J. Randolph Anderson, of the First district, issued a statement Tuesday in which he claimed that he would enter the election with thirty-two votes, of which number he says he has twenty-eight written pledges.

Judge John T. Allen, of the Twentieth district, the other candidate for president of the senate, also gave out a statement Tuesday in which he states that he has twenty-five pledged votes.

With the speakership contest ended, the principal pre-session interest centers in the race for president of the senate and the races for speaker pro tem. of the house and president pro tem. of the senate.

There are four candidates for speaker pro tem.—Representative E. H. McMichael, of Marion; Dr. A. J. S. Stovall, of Elbert; Representative John P. Cheney, of Cobb, and Representative John C. Foster, of Floyd. The two candidates for president pro tem. of the senate are Senator W. J. Bush, of the Eighth district, and Senator E. L. Smith, of the Ninth district.

MR. HARDEMAN'S STATEMENT.

"*My friends have carefully can*vassed the situation with reference to the campaign for the speakership of the house. It is now so near the time for the general assembly to convene that I deem it fair and just to my friends to make a frank statement.

"I am thankful for the good of Georgia that the campaign has been waged without bitterness. I have been unfair to my friends only in that I have not been as active as I should have been. I have labored without the assistance of any organization or interests, solely with the assistance of as true and loyal friends as ever blessed a man's life, and I shall remember and love them so long as I live.

"The political success of no candidate for an office is essential to the peace, happiness or prosperity of this great state, nor is such success essential to the happiness and peace of mind of the candidate himself. At least it is not to mine. I have experienced more real happiness and joy in the unselfish and loyal support of my friends in this race than I ever could in the mere occupancy of the speaker's chair.

"I would rather have these friends without any public office than to occupy the highest office without the friends.

"With sincerity I can state that in my heart there is no unkind feeling for any member of the house. I love them all who love Georgia and want to work for her best interests.

"There are many things to be done this summer and I shall be ready at any and all time to unite hand and heart with any member or members in any work looking to the welfare of Georgia and her people. While I have had and now have a large number of friends who are loyal in their support, I am convinced that the number is not sufficient to elect me and in justice to them, I now retire from the race for speaker."

tion of council, but you know I differed with them, in the first place, as to the legality of the contract, and the supreme court upheld my contention."

Meanwhile, the Destructor company is proceeding with work, and W. D. Ellis, Jr., the assistant city attorney, claims that it has a perfect right to proceed under the council resolution.

"On Monday," said Mr. Ellis, "Mr. Gorse had the judgment of the supreme court in the crematory case made the judgment of the superior court. That judgment was that the Destructor company could not proceed with the work under the contract. But the company is not proceeding under the contract. It is proceeding under a special resolution of council, and council is entirely within its legal authority in authorizing the company to proceed."

man, nor is he impulsive. But he was impressed with the earnestness and clearness of the manner in which the president appealed to congress to lay aside physical discomforts, and give the country relief.

The impression the president's address made upon Senator Stone is typical of the general expressions to be heard today.

Senator Smith declared that he had never heard a speech of ten minutes in which such real "meat" had been crowded into a president's address.

"I sincerely believe that the president will succeed in getting currency legislation at this session," said the senator. "Moreover, the legislation will be of a desirable and helpful character to the people of the country."

The senator and John K. Ottley conferred at length last night about the currency.

MR. A. J. HALTIWANGER IS BURIED AT OAKLAND

The interment of the body of A. J. Haltiwanger, who dropped dead Sunday at Rome, Ga., took place Monday afternoon at Oakland cemetery, when many friends of the well known Atlanta man gathered together to pay a final tribute to his memory.

Mr. Haltiwanger was held in high esteem. He had lived in Atlanta for many years, much of the time being office manager and credit man for Crane, Boylston & Co. Later he was identified with a large drug company here, and at the time of his death was one of the best expert accountants in the south.

Mr. Haltiwanger is survived by his wife, two daughters, Mrs. B. I. Hughes, of Rome, and Mrs. John Hullis, of Montgomery, Ala., and two sons, Albert and Arthur Haltiwanger.
